

ROOSEVELT WILL BOLT ANYONE BUT HIMSELF

Threat That Under No Circumstances Will He Support Hughes -- Declines to Make Any Selection, Assuming That Republicans Should Nominate Himself.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Coliseum, Chicago, June 7.—Only Theodore Roosevelt can prevent the placing in the field of a Republican national ticket and a Progressive one for the coming campaign.

If he wants to promise to support the nominee of the Republican party—and he can name that individual so long as it is not himself—then the Republicans will co-operate with the Progressives. But if the threat sent to the Republican leaders today that under no circumstances will he support Justice Hughes if the latter is the Republican nominee is in good faith and expresses the actual feelings of the Colonel, then there will be no peace negotiations. The Republicans will nominate the justice and demand that he sacrifice himself to his party and will make the fight regardless of consequences.

This was the position taken just as the Republican convention assembled here today. It followed a series of conference in which all of the leaders participated at one time or another. Originally these conferences were called to consider an offer from the Progressives to name a get-together committee to arrange for a program on which the two conventions could unite, but the kaleidoscopic changes of the situation turned what had been planned to be a peace session into a council of war strategy.

"I will bolt if you name Hughes," is Roosevelt's attitude, according to the word conveyed to the Republican leaders.

"Whom do you want outside of yourself?" was the rejoinder.

"I will not make any selection for my friends tell me that if your committee appear I will be the choice," was the last word of Mr. Roosevelt's spokesman.

Republican leaders immediately lined up against Roosevelt's committee. They made it plain that there would be no use of naming it unless the Progressive party leaders were willing to assure them that the situation would be discussed dispassionately and no effort made to thrust on Roosevelt. If the Progressive chiefs show that they can control their "wild horses," and are willing to agree on another candidate who actually is a Republican, then such a conference committee may yet be named.

But as the convention assembled it was plain that the leaders had little hope this would be done, and they were devoting all of their energy to influence Justice Hughes from eliminating himself as a candidate. While no one tried to speak for the justice officially, the men who say that he must lead the Republican fight were calling attention to statements that he made while governor of New York, that a man should be willing to make sacrifices for a party that had honored him.

George W. Perkins expressed surprise when he heard that word had come that Roosevelt would run on a third ticket if Hughes were nominated by the Republicans.

"Unless that is an official announcement," said Perkins, "it can be easily denied."

Some Republicans declared that Roosevelt was "bluffing again" and asserted they would stand pat.

Governor Whitman met the news that Roosevelt intended running on a third ticket if Hughes is nominated by the Republicans with a laugh.

"It is no surprise," he said. "I expected it."

"Will it make any change in your plans?" he was asked.

"Not any," was the answer.

"Do you think that it will cause Justice Hughes to decline the Republican nomination if it is tendered to him?" he was then asked.

"I can't say as to that," he answered. "But I don't think so."

The governor said that Hughes will be nominated by the Republicans probably on the second or third ballot.

CONVENTION COMMENT.

Chicago, June 7.—Chauncey M. Depew, ex-senator from New York and most famous of after-dinner speakers, wandered into the Sherman headquarters. A half dozen old time Illinois politicians greeted him but the young leaders, who are directing the campaign of Senator Sherman, either did not know the distinguished New Yorker or were too busy to listen to stories.

"When Teddy comes marching home" sung to the tune of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" is the new war song of the Roosevelt Progressives. There are several verses. Here's one:

"The pacifists will not be there.
"Hurrah! Hurrah!"
"Jesus won't be anywhere.
"Hurrah! Hurrah!"
"We'll not be bossed by Henry Ford.
"Nor Old Doc Bryan, thank the Lord!"

Many of the delegates from warm states are suffering from rheumatism. A chill rain was still falling today.

An umbrella vender did a rushing business at the entrance to the Congress Hotel. The rain shields were sold at one dollar each—and generally survived one blast from Lake Michigan.

Elevator service in the Congress Hotel is slow. One delegate waited vainly for half an hour to board a car up to the caucus of the Tennessee delegation. Then he whispered to a bellboy and a coin changed hands. The delegate was with his delegation in three minutes. He had been taken up in the freight elevator.

"We like Chicago people; we admire Chicago stores; we envy Chicago's boulevard system and Chicago's spirit; but we think Chicago's weather is rotten," was the caustic comment of Henry S. Chubb, national committeeman from Florida.

"Of course you have nice weather at times," he added, "but it's too uncertain for a Florida gentleman."

The colored delegates from Georgia have poor memories. After the caucus Tuesday when National Committeeman Henry S. Jackson was re-elected, a dozen or more of the "black and tans" element from the state were asked the result by a curious correspondent. None remembered. "Mr. Jackson read the names to us only once," was the excuse of one.

Strictest fire laws prevailed at today's Republican convention. A "No Smoking" sign adorned every available spot on the Coliseum walls. Several hundred firemen and policemen were present to see that it was obeyed. It looked as if they were going to have their hands full with Uncle Joe Cannon.

Heavy wooden boxes addressed to T. Coleman DuPont filled one of the corridors on the second floor of the Congress Hotel.

"Dynamite for the powder king to blow up the Republican convention," remarked a husky westerner, as he read the name of Delaware's favorite son.

"Now, just a lot of literature," returned his companion.

A big picture of Abraham Lincoln, framed with some of the black walnut rails which the martyred president split to fence an Illinois farm, was placed in the Sherman headquarters.

"Sign your name," W. J. Bryan signed his, "cried a strong voiced Hoosier in front of the Charles Warren Fairbanks headquarters. Every convention delegate and visitor is urged to sign his name to the "roll of honor."

"Starting a mail order list for Indiana apples?" asked a Washington delegate suspiciously.

"Roosevelt Republican delegates committee," was the way it was written on the make-shift signs tacked on the door of room 1160 Congress Hotel for the information of the passing G. O. P. delegates who were not forewarned to a "favorite son," or who held no unshakable convictions concerning a particular candidate other than T. R.

Shortly afterwards some one with an evil-savored sense of humor saw the sign. The corridor was deserted, for the hour was one of those between dawn and the awakening of the earliest riser among the convention visitors.

The observer—who was not a "Teddy" booster—with what may be imagined as a grim smile of satisfaction, added a word with a pencil. The legend then read "Roosevelt Republican Delegates DISASTER Committee."

Carpete Boy Plays Truant.

Dominnick, the son of Sam Carpete, an Italian at Kingston Point, will not go to school when sent and plays truant. This resulted in the arrest of his father under the provisions of the education law and he was arraigned before Recorder Lang this morning, who after hearing the story held the case open until Saturday morning. The court informed the father that if the son persisted in staying away from school the lad would be sent to an institution.

SMALL SECTION OF BEACON SKIRT FACTORY IN RONDOUT.

One of the busiest places in town is the factory of the Beacon Light Skirt Manufacturing Company in the Kennedy building on lower Broadway, opposite Abel street, one section of which is shown in the accompanying photograph.

The picture shows only a small section of the factory, which has a floor space of 60 by 80 feet. The company was organized and incorporated by Frank Forman and Sam Bernstein, who are the owners of the stock. It began business about the first of January of this year and has been kept busy ever since.

High grade skirts are manufactured by the company, which employs sixteen people, of whom ten are men. The latter are all expert cutters, pressers and finishers who learned their trade in the big New York factories and came to Kingston with their families, Kingston heretofore not having experts in these lines among her citizens. S. Oster is the superintendent of the plant and designer of the skirts which are manufactured.

At the present time the company has sufficient orders for as many wash skirts as the factory will be able to fill for the next four weeks.

ERNEST AHRENS KILLED BY TRAIN

He and Ward Bell, Section Hands on West Shore, Hit by Rip Van Winkle Flyer at West Park on Tuesday—Bell Expected to Recover.

Ernest Ahrens, a section hand on the West Shore railroad, was hit by the Rip Van Winkle flyer at West Park shortly after six o'clock Tuesday evening, and died later at the Kingston City Hospital where he was removed. Ward Bell, who was with him, at the time was also hit by the train, and removed to the hospital, where it was stated this morning that he is expected to recover.

From what could be learned of railroad officials Ahrens and Bell, who are both young men, were employed as section hands on the road. At the time of the accident they were standing on the south bound track watching a freight train passing on the north bound track and did not hear the flyer approaching. Both were hurled some distance through the air when they were hit by the pilot of the engine. They were picked up and brought to Kingston on two light engines and hurried to the Kingston City Hospital in the city ambulance.

There it was found that Ahrens had sustained a fractured skull. He died at 8:40 o'clock that evening. Bell's injuries were found not to be as serious, and he will probably recover.

The dead man is but 17 years of age, and is a son of Ernest and Sophia Ahrens and resided with his parents on First avenue. Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters, Maria and Ella, who reside at home. The body was turned over to Stock & Cordts, and the funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mr. Bell's address is given in the city directory as South Manor avenue. He is a member of Co. M.

F. E. W. DARROW TO BE A TRUSTEE

The name of Frederick E. W. Darrow of Kingston will be presented at a meeting of the alumni of the Albany Law School which will meet tomorrow, as one of the four alumni to be elected by the association to sit on the board of trustees of the school. This is the first time in the history of the school that the alumni association has been represented on the board of trustees. Four names will be recommended and voted upon at the meeting: H. Leroy Austin of Albany, term, four years; Frederick E. W. Darrow of Kingston, term, three years; J. Sheldon Frost of Albany, chief counsel of the state excise commission, two years; and Frederick C. Filley, assistant district attorney of Rensselaer county, term one year.

At this meeting an endeavor will be made to raise a fund for the erection of a new school building, $30,000 already having been pledged. At the close of the meeting a dinner will be served the members at the Ten Eyck hotel.

This year's graduating class of the Albany Law School contains 59 members. Many of Kingston's coming attorneys are at present studying at the Albany school.

NEW FACTORY TO MAKE NAPHTHALENE

Rushing Work on Kingston Chemical Manufacturing Company's New Plant, Which Will be Running This Month.

By the latter part of June the new plant of the recently organized Kingston Chemical Manufacturing Company, Inc., will probably be in operation with a force of men and machinery equipment turning out a ton of naphthalene daily. The product of this factory, of which there are only a half dozen others in the country, will be used in the manufacture of dyestuffs. The same product is used as a basis for explosives in powder mills.

Buckley & Schryver, who have the contract for the erection of the building, which stands along the West Shore railroad on the old Van Gass street property near the city line on Albany avenue, are pushing construction. A huge tank weighing several tons was placed this week by Van Etten & Hogan, and in spite of its bulk and weight slid easily into place on the masonry supports awaiting it. The building is of two stories, frame construction, 100 by 30 feet with a wing 30 x 30 feet.

Officers of the Kingston Chemical Manufacturing Company, Inc., are E. Metzger, president and general manager; Joseph M. Fowler, vice president; Clifford C. Rose, secretary and superintendent; H. B. TenHagen, assistant secretary.

Speaking of the new industry today Mr. Metzger said that a similar plant at Amherst, Ohio, in which he was interested had contracted its output for a long period in advance and that instead of adding to that factory it was decided to start one in Kingston. As business is developed new units will be added to the local buildings as may be necessary.

"Eighty-five per cent of the present consumption was previously imported," said Mr. Metzger, "and the demands of the dye market has practically tripled the production since the war cut off the supply from abroad."

BOY SCOUTS TO MARCH.

All Boy Scouts to Meet at Y. M. C. A. Friday for Drill.

The Boy Scouts of the city will take part in the Commercial Travelers' parade on Saturday morning, and they are requested to meet at the Y. M. C. A. on Friday evening at 8 o'clock to drill. It is hoped that every Scout will make it a point to attend the drill.

Patrick Was Drunk.

Patrick Rush, who said he lives at Saugerties, came to Kingston on Tuesday and proceeded to get drunk. In fact so drunk was he that he needed the entire sidewalk and the greater part of the road in which to walk and was taken in tow by Policeman Reardon to save him from being run down by a vehicle. This morning he was arraigned before Recorder Lang and pleaded hard to be allowed to go home. He said he had never been arrested and his wife and family and his job were awaiting him at home. He was allowed to go on his promise never to get drunk in Kingston again.

Lime Kiln in Dangerous Condition.

The old lime kiln on Murray street, near Hasbrouck avenue, is in a dangerous condition and should be torn down. Part of the building fell with a crash on Monday night, and unless the building is removed some one is liable to be hurt by the falling walls.

COUNTY SUFFRAGE CONVENTION JUNE 15

The annual convention of the suffragists of Ulster county will be held at Wiltwyck Inn Hall, on Thursday, June 15. It was so decided at the executive meeting held at the home of Mrs. Hyman Roosa at 165 Fair street, by members of the Ulster County Suffrage Association.

At this meeting all the final arrangements were completed for what they claim will be their banner convention.

Mrs. William Simmons, 263 Albany avenue, presided as chairman in place of Mrs. John W. Searing, whose sudden bereavement prevented her from attending the meeting.

The suffrage campaign district leader, Mrs. Gordon Norrie, came over from Staatsburgh to attend the meeting and give some up to date suggestions.

Mrs. Van Anda, wife of a prominent editor of the New York Times, and Mrs. Wyle, sister of the well known author, Ernest Poole, were also present.

Mrs. Simmons, the acting chairman, said the women of the organization were in a position to manage the county suffrage situation effectively and many new suffrage ideas would be discussed at the coming convention for the summer campaign.

Mrs. M. B. Morgan, active in suffrage publicity work, will remain in the county to assist in the suffrage activities.

Mrs. Morgan is a southerner and has the courage of her convictions. She says she has been a suffragist ever since when as a little girl out there among the duck hunters around Cape Hatteras, North Carolina, where she was born, she had her first argument on suffrage. Such a topic as woman's rights had never been discussed around that locality to her knowledge. But one day a northern man came down to hunt and he began to argue the matter of votes for women with a southerner. Both men turned teasingly to her standing near and said: "Why, you wouldn't ever want to vote, would you?"

Said Mrs. Morgan: "I did not know anything about what a vote was except that it was something that my father had and my mother didn't; my brother would some time have and I never could. So I said, 'I don't see why mother and I shouldn't have what brother and father have.' But you couldn't dig in a ditch," said the northern gentleman, provokingly. I was only a little girl but I looked at his nice white hands and I knew that gentleman had never dug in a ditch in his life. I did not understand sophistry in those days but he got the best of the argument, but it set me thinking and my soul grew rebellious from that on. And I was grown I came north and was one of the first group of women to speak for the vote in the streets of New York."

Active in the work of the convention are Mrs. M. J. Mitchell, Mrs. N. D. J. Murphy, Mrs. Charles M. Preston, Mrs. S. Panton, Mrs. H. P. Van Wagenen, Mrs. Vernon Hull.

ROOSEVELT WILL RUN AWAY

Designation of committees and transaction of miscellaneous business.

Coliseum, Chicago, June 7.—The 1916 Republican convention today is an actuality. Its routine of organization was carried out with a precision in no way disturbed by the fact that not even the leaders were prepared to forecast whether it was to end in a "fight or a frolic."

It was a Republican convention, the leaders said, and under no circumstances would control of it be surrendered to any other party.

"Peace with regularity or war, even thought it means defeat," was the war slogan of the "Old Guard." And they had "counted noses," and had the votes to keep control even though they could not unite then on any single candidate.

The convention was called to order at 11:27 by Chairman Charles D. Hilles of the Republican national committee. At that hour nearly every delegate was in his seat while the galleries were filled to suffocation.

The first slogan of the convention came from the lips of National Chairman C. D. Hilles, who, after the convention had become an orderly gathering, made the following announcement:

"Paraphrasing a remark of the late President McKinley, 'This is a year when politics is patriotism, and patriotism is politics.' Therefore the audience will arise and sing two verses of America."

Following the singing, Chairman Hilles introduced the Rev. J. Timothy Stone, D. D., of Chicago, who offered the opening prayer.

Chairman Hilles then announced that the next proceeding would be the taking of the photograph by the official photographer, and there was a general laugh as the man in charge of the flash called for the delegates to face the cameras. The big flash light was exploded at 11:37.

With their pictures taken, the delegates seemed relieved and greeted Secretary James B. Reynolds with a round of hand clapping which seemed to be in earnest, as he came forward to read the official call for the convention.

Mr. Reynolds's voice did not carry beyond the first few rows of delegates, and the galleries could not hear a word he said.

As a result, a murmur of conversations from the crowd rose above the faint voice of the rotund and popular secretary.

Mr. Reynolds tried to emphasize the section of the call which set forth that invitations to send delegates were extended to electors "without regard to past political affiliations," but the delegates paid no attention to him and the anticipated applause was most conspicuous by its absence.

Long before the secretary had reached the end of the call, his voice had died down almost to a whisper and Chairman Hilles was forced to come to his rescue and restore order with a few blows of the gavel.

Mr. Reynolds ended his reading of the call at 11:45, and Chairman Hilles immediately announced that by direction of the national committee, he presented the name of a delegate from Ohio, Senator Warren G. Harding, to be temporary chairman.

"Are there any other nominations?" he asked.

"No," shouted a delegate, and a cheer followed. The selection of Chairman Harding was made by acclamation.

The national chairman then named a committee to escort Chairman Harding to the platform, the following delegates composing it: Former Senator Crane of Massachusetts, Senator Borah of Idaho and William B. McKinley of Illinois.

It then developed that Borah had not yet arrived but the other two committeemen proceeded to the Ohio section and brought Senator Harding to the platform.

the Ohio senator stepped to the front we were greeted with cheers and hand clapping which lasted for about one minute.

The senator held a printed copy of his "keynote utterance" in his hand and carefully followed his text. The Ohio senator was in excellent voice and his speech was heard in the farthest end of the hall.

His appeal to unite for harmony and "make amends to the country," was cheered for half a minute.

Senator Harding's appeal for national defense met with a round of applause. When he reached his appeal for "party solidarity," his every word was hung on by the delegates. They listened most intently to what he said and his slogan that "Party success and party capacity for service to the nation must lie in making the will of a righteous majority the willing pledge of all," met with a round of emphatic applause which showed that his view was that of the majority.

"This is not the time for reorganization, it is the day of reconsecration" was an epigram that also seemed to please the great majority of the delegates.

The chairman's declaration that: "Everything is abnormal except the depleted condition of the federal treasury, which is characteristic of Democratic control and the facility of the administration for writing notes without effective notice," was followed by the first genuine laugh of the day, delegates and spectators alike joining in it.

Announcement that the Republicans believe in adequate national defense by the chairman, pleased the delegates.

"We ought to have a navy that fears none in the world," was another declaration that brought the delegates to their feet with shouts of approval.

And farther into his speech, the delegates began to warm up, and the applause became almost continuous and generous.

(The full text of Senator's Harding's speech will be found on page 9 of The Freeman today.)

The Republican national convention adjourned at 1:24 today to reconvene at 11 o'clock tomorrow.

PROGRESSIVES HOWL FOR T. R. AND THE FLAG

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Auditorium, Chicago, June 7.—Raymond Robins, deliverer of the keynote speech in the Progressive convention, and one of the founders of the party, said just before the convention was called to order today that he and many of the rank and file of the party will be ready to accept Justice Hughes on one condition.

The condition was, he said, that Hughes declare himself on the question of preparedness and Americanism.

"We know how he stands on economic and social problems," said Mr. Robins. "He meets our views on these subjects."

"What we want to know is how he stands on Americanism and preparedness."

"If he will come out with a good strong statement in which he eliminates the hyphen, I for one, will be with him, and many of the rank and file are of the same frame of mind."

From the very jump, the Progressive convention was a fervent tribute to the flag.

The Stars and Stripes waved in a mad riot of red, white and blue. At the back of the stage the national coat of arms was surrounded by a great sheaf of flags. Great flags flanked the sheaf. Two monster flags ran up the side walls of the stage.

"The Star Spangled Banner," "The Stars and Stripes Forever," "Rally Round the Flag," "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue" and "It's a Grand Old Flag," had been vibrated into the atmosphere by an early coming and interesting band.

The spirit of Mistress Betsy Ross ruled in the color scheme, in sentiment and in every action.

At 9 o'clock two sentry policemen stood alone in the top gallery. The lights began to blink. Four women appeared in an upper box and then there came the first of the delegates. The first delegates to enter the hall were from the New York delegation. Closely following them came the vanguard of North Dakota folk. Then the hall began to fill. And was there evidence of compromise as they came? Was there in the air the spirit of swapping the colonel for another?

"We want Teddy."

That was the answer. Just to show how neutral they could be, somebody started "Ich Bin Ein Jagersmann" in the parent tongue of the justly celebrated

Reported That Circus Party Injured
 Will Demand $5,000.

A law suit involving the sum of $10,000 is looming up as a result of the auto ride of Windham residents to Kingston recently to witness the Barnum-Bailey circus. Returning home in the evening an accident occurred while near Ashokan. It is claimed that M. C. Mattoon, who was driving the car, started a race with other cars and while traveling at the rate of 50 miles an hour crashed into a telegraph pole, throwing the occupants of the car in the ditch. Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hidecker of Windham received severe injuries.

Mr. Hidecker being badly battered about the face and head, his body lacerated and one ear nearly torn off. Mrs. Hidecker had all her teeth knocked out and was otherwise injured. It is reported that both Mr. and Mrs. Hidecker contemplate bringing an action against Mattoon & Sons, owners of the car, for $5,000 each for injuries received.

Music on Wall Street.

During the day the shoppers on Wall street enjoyed the sweet strains of music from a harp, played by a musician who had established himself near the corner of John and Wall streets. Many a passerby paused to listen to the unusual street music.

BRITISH EMPIRE
MOURNS KITCHENER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 7.—All of the British Empire is in mourning today for Lord Kitchener, late secretary of state for war, who with his staff were drowned off the Scottish coast when the cruiser Hampshire was destroyed by a mine or torpedo on Monday night.

The girdle of red around the world typifying the Union Jack has become a girdle of black.

From the four quarters of the globe messages of condolence are pouring into London.

It is likely that great memorial service will be held in St. Paul's or Westminster Abbey to be attended by King George and representatives of the Allied governments.

There was a conference of the cabinet this morning to discuss the situation brought about by the sudden death of the war secretary upon whose shoulders was borne the burden of conducting the mighty military establishment of the Empire.

Flags are at half mast everywhere. Silent throngs filled the streets discussing the tragedy.

Despite the secrecy attending the visit of Lord Kitchener to Russia the belief is growing that the German Admiralty was notified of the proposed trip by a spy and that the Hampshire was blown up through some agency of Germany, perhaps a submarine.

Insistent demands are made by the newspapers that more rigorous treatment be accorded enemy aliens in the British Isles.

The question of Lord Kitchener's successor was one of the chief topics. The three names most conspicuously mentioned were those of Sir William Robertson, chief of staff of the British army, who was designated as acting war secretary in the absence of Lord Kitchener; David Lloyd-George, the minister of munitions; and Lord Derby, who was not in charge of the recruiting when that burden was taken away from the war office.

It is believed that the total death list in the destruction of the Hampshire will be nearly 700, as the sea was so rough that the small boats launched after the explosion could not live. Among the victims were the following notables who were accompanying the war secretary:

Col. O. A. Fitzgerald, military secretary to Lord Kitchener; Brigadier-General Ellershaw, of the ministry of munitions; Sir Frederick Donaldson, of the ordnance department; Lieut. R. B. MacPherson, of General Ellershaw's staff; Lieut. Robinson, aide de camp to Sir Frederick Donaldson; and Hugh O'Beirne.

Following the order issued by the king the whole British army has gone into mourning and will remain in mourning for a week.

Ever since Monday night, when the tragedy occurred, the admiralty has been making search off the coast for the bodies of Kitchener and his staff. Patrol boats have combed the coast and search parties have combed the beach.

Despite the power and prestige of Kitchener his death will have no effect on the military situation of England. It is declared in official circles. The empire will continue to battle as vigorously as ever against the enemy. But it is evident from the attitude of the press and the public that a feeling of deep depression has followed.

The newspapers all eulogize Kitchener, the Times especially, which has been one of his severest critics.

"In the discharge of his duty Kitchener died a soldier's death," says the Times. "The splendid forces that he raised had begun long since to prove on the firing line the care and thoroughness with which they were created. The man to whom we owe them had nothing left to do in life which could steel them for the conflict so surely as his soldier's death."

"Kitchener's monument is Kitchener's army, the people say—that bulwark of 5,000,000 men that stands like a wall before the foe."

TWENTY NEW BOATS
BEING BUILT

All Boatyards Along Rondout Creek
 Are Busy—Said to be Running
 Shorthanded—New Yard on Island
 Dock.

This season has been an unusually good one for the boatbuilding industry along the Rondout creek and every yard is running full time, and can not get enough men to work. At the present time over twenty new boats are under course of construction at the various yards along the creek.

Bernard Donovan, of this city, has started a boatyard on the lower end of the Island Dock, and already has a large boat under course of construction. All of the other yards have from one to seven boats each under way, and hundreds of men are having steady work at good wages.

It is said that all of the yards are running shorthanded as it is impossible to secure as many skilled men as needed in the work.

Since the opening of navigation a number of new boats have also been launched from the various yards along the creek.

SAVORY SUPPER DISHES.

To make a supper dish at all popular it must be tasty and quickly prepared. Milk toast fills both of these qualifications, therefore it is a great favorite.

Spanish Chowder. — Cook together a can of tomatoes and a can of red kidney beans for ten minutes. Add a pound of finely chopped hamburger steak, one chopped green pepper, and salt and pepper to taste. Cook five minutes longer and serve piping hot.

Corn Bread. — At noon put two cups of cornmeal in a mixing bowl and pour over it 1 1/2 cups of boiling water, enough to thoroughly scald it. Mix well and cover with a coating of butter, cover and let stand until night. When ready to bake add a beaten egg, 1 1/2 cups of milk, a cup of flour, sifted, with three teaspoons of baking powder and a half teaspoon of salt; use more milk if needed, as this should make a thick spoon batter. Bake 20 minutes in gem pans.

Halibut With Codfish. — Wash and flake a cupful of halibut, wash and flake two cupfuls of codfish and cover with boiling water; let simmer for 20 minutes, drain and rinse again. Melt four tablespoons of butter, add two of flour and blend until smooth; pour this into 1 1/2 cupfuls of rich milk. Season with paprika and salt if needed. Place the drained fish in a casserole, pour the sauce over it and cover thickly with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven a half hour.

Mulligatawny Soup. — Slice three large onions and brown them slightly with four slices of chopped bacon. Remove from the heat and add a teaspoonful of curry powder, four tablespoons of flour and a half teaspoonful of salt; blend all together and then add three pints of veal or chicken stock. Chop two apples very fine, add them to the soup and simmer gently until the apples are cooked and the soup is thick.

Rice Muffins. — Mix a cupful of boiled rice with two cupfuls of sifted flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, a tablespoonful of sugar, a half teaspoonful of salt, one egg and a cupful of milk. Mix well and bake in muffin pans. Serve hot.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 7, 1916.

William Jennings Bryan is reporting the Chicago convention for the New York World and all that he can see in the gathering of delegates from every State is a lot of politicians hungry for offices from which they were separated by the last Presidential election. The Republican politicians, says Bryan, are hungry for a return to office; the Progressives are hungry for a return to the Republican party, and "special interests" are hungry for an atmosphere which is not chilly and uninviting. The fact that this nation is facing a crisis in its history escapes the comprehension of the man who guided the nation in its foreign affairs as Secretary of State. The attitude of men having red blood in their veins who resent the abrogation of American principles and rights as inaugurated in the State Department by Mr. Bryan himself and continued by a weak administration to the present day cannot be understood by a statesman whose predominant thought, as revealed in his correspondence with a discredited American consul at Santo Domingo was to have the American consular service abroad provide "jobs for deserving Democrats." As between principle and jobs, all that Bryan can see is jobs. His life history shows his character clearly and his acts both as a private individual and as the head of the State Department reveal his overwhelming love for "pup" and "pork," if principle is ranged on the other side. Is it wonderful, then, that with such a brilliant example before them the Democrats in Congress should neglect preparedness and all other national issues in order to devote their entire time to the drafting of a pork barrel bill which appropriates millions of dollars for the improvement of creeks and brooks in Southern States where commerce never can be made successful without construction of canals as big as that at Panama?

The other day the wife of a Captain in the American navy took the receiver off the telephone at her home in Washington and talked by wireless to her husband in his cabin aboard one of our battleships at sea off the Virginia capes. It requires no undue stretch of the imagination to forecast in the near future the actual communication by telephone with warships in action. A strangely absent detail in all of the reports of the great North Sea engagement is as to whether wireless telegraphy played any part. It would seem that it must have served some useful end in the exchange of signals, but so far no mention has been made of any such feature. Were wireless telephony practiced during this action, the lot of the commanders would have been an unhappy one, indeed. Imagine the Kaiser at one end of the connection with Vice-Admiral Scheer at the receiving end; nor would Admiral Beatty have had things one whit easier with querulous King George to reckon with. The growing use of wireless telephony will never meet with any cordial reception by the commanders of battle squadrons, as there is sufficient interference from the red tape of landlubber superior officers at the present time.

Since the days that the electric lighting and telegraph companies were given the use of the public streets almost every community in the country has had at one time or another more or less agitation as to the indiscriminate trimming of trees by some of these public service corporations in order to clear uninterrupted ways for their wires. Such agitations have led almost inevitably to the passage of ordinances against the cutting or unsupervised trimming of trees within the street line and the conferring of some supervisory authority over the trees in question upon some city or village official. It seems, however, that Kingston with all its wealth of shade trees has been without such protection and that vandalism in some form or other has been the only activity in the line of forestry for some years, now that the Board of Public Works has very properly acted in the premises and devised an ordinance to prevent any more unnecessary sacrifices in this direction, it is hoped there will be a more general interest taken in the welfare of the trees. There are many in the city badly in need of care or even of cutting, and there is ample room for the exercise of common sense in this connection without the services of high-salaried experts. If this desired effect can be brought about, the fine basswood tree on Crown street will not have been sacrificed in vain.

No well-informed person questions the fact that Lord Kitchener was one of the greatest soldiers the world ever produced, both as a leader in battles and an organizer of armies. Yet is it a mistake to refer to him as "indispensable." There is no such thing. All great causes have lost leaders, but not one of them ever failed on that account. When one man drops from the head of the column there is always a successor, inferior perhaps in ability, but yet sufficient to the task. Failure comes not through the loss of captains, but through weakness in the cause itself. If all the crowned heads and most famous statesmen of Europe were to be destroyed, the final outcome of the war would not be materially affected. Even our American political parties never find themselves reduced to the necessity of nominating "the only man" for President, although one might think so to hear some patriots talk.

A Free-Seeds Story.

Here is an old yarn, worth repeating:

Representative Hull of Iowa sent free seeds to a constituent in a franked envelope, on the corner of which were the usual words, "Penalty for private use, $300." A few days later he received a letter which read:

"I don't know what to do about those garden seeds you sent me. I notice it is $300 fine for private use. I don't want to use them for the public. I want to plant them in my private garden. I can't afford to pay $300 for the privilege. Won't you see if you can't fix it so I can use them privately? I am a law-abiding citizen, and do not want to commit any crime."—Washington Post.

More His Price

Only the fact that his cold was very severe indeed persuaded Sandy Macgregor to go to the local chemist for advice.

"Mon, A've an awfu' cauld," he said, plaintively. "Hae ye a guid cure for it?"

"I have," said the man of drugs promptly. "I know of a sovereign remedy."

Sandy backed slowly towards the shop door.

"Hoots ava' mon!" he said again, anxiously. "D'ye no ken yin about fover-pence?"—The London Answers.

How It Happened.

"Do you think any girl ever proposed in leap year, as they say, Jennie?" he asked.

"Not unless she was obliged to," answered the maiden.

"Mm! I never thought of that," he said, after a pause.

"But, George," she said, laying her hand affectionately on his arm and looking up into his eyes; "you, I am sure, will never force me to that humiliation."

"No—er—that is to say—of course not, I—"

The ice was broken and three minutes later there was a job in prospect for the parson.—The Boston Transcript.

"But I don't know you, madam," protested the paying teller to a woman who had presented a check. The woman, instead of replying haughtily, "I do not wish your acquaintance, sir," merely gave him a glassy smile and said:

When you started to town this morning your wife said, 'Now, Henry, if you want a dinner fit to eat this evening you'll have to leave me a little money. FLY-BY-NIGHTS TO BE REGULATED

Common Council Adopts Ordinance Regulating Auction Sales in City—Thought to be Result of Conference Between Mayor Canfield and Business Men.

Some time ago, as told in The Freeman at the time, a number of local business men held a conference with Mayor Canfield regarding so-called "fly-by-night auction concerns" which visit different cities in the state. Tuesday evening at the meeting of the common council Alderman George A. Leverich submitted an ordinance regulating auction sales in the city of Kingston, which was unanimously adopted.

It was brought out that Kingston formerly had a so-called "fly-by-night" ordinance, but it had been declared unconstitutional. The ordinance adopted by the common council is of interest and is printed in full. It reads as follows: The common council of the city of Kingston in pursuance of the charter of said city and the general laws of the state, do hereby ordain and enact as follows:

Section One—No person, firm or corporation, whether acting as principal or agent for another, shall conduct a public auction or a transient retail business within the city of Kingston for the sale of goods, which shall be represented or advertised as a bankrupt or assigned stock, or as goods damaged by fire, water or otherwise, or as sold below cost, or to close out an estate, or by like representation or device, without first obtaining a license so to do from the chief of police which shall be countersigned by the mayor.

Section Two—The owner of such stock of goods shall apply for such license by verified petition, stating his or its name, residence, street and number of the proposed place of selling and setting forth in detail the goods to be sold and what facts are to be represented or advertised as to the same and the length of time for which a license is desired and shall furnish to the mayor and the chief of police such further proof as shall be necessary to establish the truth of the facts stated in said petition.

Section Three—The mayor and chief of police shall have authority to issue such license as aforesaid, except as to auction sales between sunset and eight o'clock a. m., which are forbidden; and which license shall state that it is issued upon condition that such goods are as represented in said application, and that the same shall not be represented or advertised otherwise, and that no other goods shall be advertised, represented or sold under said license, and that inspection fees shall be paid upon demand as inspections are made, and that such sales shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Penal Law and the general laws of the state and of local ordinances applicable thereto.

Section Four—The chief of police shall cause such inspection to be made from time to time as may be necessary to determine whether the conditions of said license are being complied with.

Section Five—The applicant shall pay for such license for each thirty days or less during which said license is to run, a sufficient sum to reimburse the city for the expense of said investigation and the issuing of said license, not exceeding fifty dollars, and not to exceed ten dollars for each subsequent inspection, such respective amounts to be determined by the chief of police.

Section Six—No person, firm or corporation shall exhibit for sale or sell any goods, wares and merchandise other than hereinbefore or hereinafter mentioned in said city at public auction or sale by bid without first obtaining a license so to do from the chief of police which shall be countersigned by the mayor. The fee for such license shall be as follows: For one day, three dollars, for one week, ten dollars, for one month, twenty dollars, and for one year, fifty dollars. Such auction shall not be held between sunset and eight o'clock a. m., and any such license shall so provide.

This section shall not apply to the sale of household furniture, farming utensils, horses, cattle and hay by the householder or farmer upon his own respective residential premises when such person is not engaged in that line of business.

Section Seven—The mayor or chief of police may revoke any such license for any violation of the conditions thereof, and such license shall become void upon any such violation whether so revoked or not, or either of them may suspend such license during an investigation as to whether any of such conditions have been violated.

Section Eight—All ordinances or parts thereof insofar as the same are inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Section Nine—The violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Section Ten—This ordinance shall be published twice in each of the official papers of the city, and shall take effect immediately after the publication thereof.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Samuel Judkins of Ohioville has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court. The testator bequeaths the sum of $300 each to his daughter, Alice E. Roosa of Stone Ridge, and son, Elmer H. Judkins, of Poughkeepsie, and the balance of the estate is given to his wife, Jane Judkins, who is appointed executrix. The will was executed January 10, 1907, and witnessed by Frank F. Simpson and Solomon G. Carpenter, both of Highland. The value of the personal property is $7,500 and there is no real estate. Guernsey & Guernsey of Poughkeepsie appeared for the executrix.

Letters of administration on the estate of Matilda Elgnor of Pine Hill were issued to her son, Robert Elgnor. The value of the real estate is $3,000 and the personal property amounts to $2,000. Brinley & Canfield appeared for the administrator.

In the estate of Hon. John J. Linsion, the account of F. J. R. Clarke, the executor, was filed with a petition for a judicial settlement of his account, on which a citation was issued returnable June 26. The inventoried value of the estate is $56,956.45, of which $54,025.04 is represented by securities. Several claims have been rejected by the executor, among which are a claim of Nancy Linsion for $3,980, and of Roger H. Loughran for $250, both of which are triable on the accounting before the surrogate. Howard Chipp appeared for the executor.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of Lillian M. Buckley as executor of the estate of Grace M. Buckley Rothlisberg of this city, and a decree was granted. Brinley & Canfield appeared for the executrix; Virgil B. Van Wageningen appeared as special guardian for minors.

In the estate of John McGeeney of this city, an order was granted appraising the estate at $6,151.17, and declaring the same exempt from tax under the taxable transfer act. Christopher A. Murray appeared for Catherine McGeeney, the executrix.

MARCEL PEACAN DEL SAR, YOUNG SOUTH AMERICAN FINANCING PUGILISTIC TOUR IN SO. THERN HEMISPHERE.

(Senor Marcel Peacan del Sar.) Twenty-two years old, handsome, married, wealthy and a real sportsman, are the characteristics of Senor Marcel del Sar of Buenos Ayres, who is financing the tour of American pugilists in South America.

His father was a famous constructing engineer, and built the first railroad over the Thames in England. Del Sar is rated a multimillionaire, his wealth having been inherited.

He is providing the "bank roll" for the invasion of the Argentine by American boxers. He is an enthusiastic fan and an amateur boxer of merit himself, and he is desirous of popularizing boxing. The sport in the Argentine is horse racing, but Senor del Sar believes that boxing will supplant it in popular favor. He is spending more than $100,000 to prove himself right or wrong in his judgment.

Senor del Sar is an accomplished athlete. He is a proficient oarsman, runner, swimmer, and holds the amateur middleweight boxing championship of South America. Just before leaving Buenos Ayres in search of foreign pugilistic talent he won a fourteen-kilometre swimming race, the time being 2 hours and 14 minutes.

Although he does not speak English, Senor del Sar is typically American in characteristics. He did not interest himself in the fight venture for financial profit, but merely to introduce the game to his countrymen.

In addition to numerous other interests, Senor del Sar is the proprietor of the Myriam, a weekly society paper published in Buenos Ayres, and the biggest publication of its kind in South America.

Technical Difficulty.

At one of the rehearsals of a play the "supers" had to go up to an altar and kneel before it. After rehearsing five or six times the stage manager lost his temper with them and shouted: "No, no! Where are your genuflections?" The chief "super" scratched his head with a puzzled expression on his face. "Well, sir," he said, apologetically, "we haven't had them from the property master!"

Optimistic Thought. Every light has its shadow and every shadow hath a succeeding morning.

Beautiful Photographs. In the window of E. Winter's store on John street are several excellent views of the big Ashokan reservoir, a picture of Kingston Point Park with one of the big Day line steamers leaving the pier and a picture of the Old Dutch Church yard taken from the junction of Main and Wall streets. All of the photographs are masterpieces of the photographer's art and are exceptionally clear and distinct. The views of the Ashokan reservoir are taken from excellent view points and show the large quantities of water already impounded. One of the views is taken looking north, showing the high bridge and mountains to the north of the reservoir.

BRITISH EMPIRE
 MOURNS KITCHENER

By Telegram to The Freeman.
 London, June 7.—All of the British Empire is in mourning today for Lord Kitchener, late secretary of state for war, who with his staff were drowned off the Scottish coast when the cruiser Hampshire was destroyed by a mine or torpedo on Monday night.

The girdle of red around the world typifying the Union Jack has become a girdle of black.

From the four quarters of the globe messages of condolence are pouring into London.

It is likely that great memorial service will be held in St. Paul's or Westminster Abbey to be attended by King George and representatives of the Allied governments.

There was a conference of the cabinet this morning to discuss the situation brought about by the sudden death of the war secretary upon whose shoulders was borne the burden of conducting the mighty military establishment of the Empire.

Flags are at half mast everywhere. Silent throngs filled the streets discussing the tragedy.

Despite the secrecy attending the visit of Lord Kitchener to Russia the belief is growing that the German Admiralty was notified of the proposed trip by a spy and that the Hampshire was blown up through some agency of Germany, perhaps a submarine.

Insistent demands are made by the newspapers that more rigorous treatment be accorded enemy aliens in the British Isles.

The question of Lord Kitchener's successor was one of the chief topics. The three names most conspicuously mentioned were those of Sir William Robertson, chief of staff of the British army, who was designated as acting war secretary in the absence of Lord Kitchener; David Lloyd-George, the minister of munitions; and Lord Derby, who was put in charge of the recruiting when that burden was taken away from the war office.

It is believed that the total death list in the destruction of the Hampshire will be nearly 700, as the sea was so rough that the small boats launched after the explosion could not be recovered. Among the victims were the following notables who were accompanying the war secretary: Col. O. A. Fitzgerald, military secretary to Lord Kitchener; Brigadier-General Piershaw, of the ministry of munitions; Sir Frederick Donaldson, of the ordnance department; Lt. Col. R. D. MacPherson, of General Piershaw's staff; Lieut. Robinson, aide de camp to Sir Frederick Donaldson; and Hugh O'Beirne.

Following the order issued by the king the whole British army has gone into mourning and will remain in mourning for a week.

From even Monday night when the tragedy occurred, the admiralty has been making search off the Orkney Islands for the bodies of Kitchener and his staff. Patrol boats have scoured the coast and search parties have combed the beach.

Despite the power and prestige of Kitchener his death will have no effect on the military situation of England. It is declared in official circles. The empire will continue to battle as vigorously as ever against the enemy. But it is evident from the attitude of the press and the public that a feeling of deep depression has followed.

The newspapers all eulogize Kitchener. The Times especially, which has been one of his severest critics.

"In the discharge of his duty Kitchener died a soldier's death," says the Times. "The splendid forces that he raised had begun long since to prove on the firing line the care and thoroughness with which they were created. The man to whom we owe them had nothing left to do in life which could steal them for the conflict so surely as his soldier's death."

"Kitchener's monument is Kitchener's army, the people say—that bulwark of 5,000,000 men that stands like a wall before the foe."

TWENTY NEW BOATS
 BEING BUILT

All Boatyards Along Rondout Creek Are Busy—Said to be Running Short-handed—New Yard on Island Dock.

This season has been an unusually good one for the boatbuilding industry along the Rondout creek and every yard is running full time, and can not get enough men to work. At the present time over twenty new boats are under course of construction at the various yards along the creek.

Bernard Donovan, of this city, has started a boatyard on the lower end of the Island Dock, and already has a large boat under course of construction. All of the other yards have from one to seven boats each under way, and hundreds of men are having steady work at good wages.

It is said that all of the yards are running short-handed as it is impossible to secure as many skilled men as needed in the work.

Since the opening of navigation a number of new boats have also been launched from the various yards along the creek.

Police Board Met.

The police board held a regular meeting on Tuesday evening, but nothing of importance came up at the meeting, which was devoted to routine business.

A Handsome Car

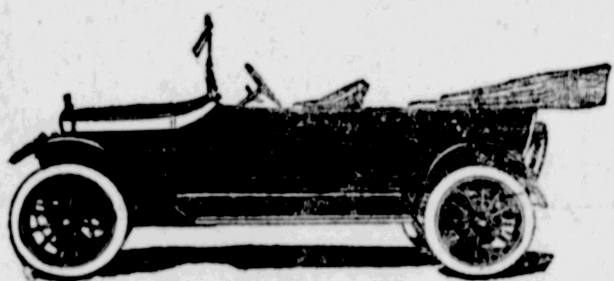

WHEN you pay several hundred dollars for an automobile, why not get a good-looking one—one that you will be proud to own, proud to drive and proud to take your friends out in? Maxwell owners have a just pride in the handsome appearance of their automobile for Maxwell Motor Cars have the same attractive lines, the same graceful design as the higher priced types.

In addition to good looks you want, of course, a reliable, sturdy and economical car. But there is no doubt in your mind on these points since the Maxwell a short time ago established the World's Motor Non-Stop Mileage Record. Any car that can run continuously for 44 days and nights, averaging 500 miles per day—22,000 miles in all and without once stopping the motor—is bound to be a well designed and well made car.

Any car that can perform such a wonderful feat on an average of one gallon of gasoline to every 22 miles is bound to be an economical car.

We have such confidence in the Maxwell car and the company behind it that we are willing to sell these cars on partial payments—and deliver the car to you when you make the first deposit. In justice to yourself you ought to know more about the Maxwell car and our pay-as-you-ride plan. All we ask is the opportunity to tell you.

BISHOP TELLS OF MISSION WORK

The missionary conference of the Kingston District of the M. E. Church was again well attended today and on Tuesday evening and the proceedings were both interesting and edifying.

Bishop Robinson on India.

Bishop J. E. Robinson was the speaker at the meeting Tuesday night which filled the church to capacity and he delivered a most interesting address on the work in that great mission field together with its needs for workers and for support from home.

A team of bullocks and a cart awaits the missionary, declared the bishop in opening and he then described the experiences of his daughter in the evangelistic work which is an annual feature in the mission field in India from February 15th to March 15th. This evangelistic campaign alone averages 10,000 baptisms and the method by which these campaigns are operated was interestingly pictured, one contingent marching from one village to another to carry the gospel message. Then the second village carries it on to another and thus in a series of religious relays a tremendous territory is covered and a vast number of people reached. All of the people are first invited to learn one text and from this the desire for more knowledge usually springs in the native breast.

"Our church was the very first to take up that method in India," declared Bishop Robinson, "and we are glad to see many of the churches take up similar lines of aggressive evangelistic work."

Anxious for Education.

"Because these people are a simple people do not imagine that they are ignorant because they assimilate the truth with ease. Of the 11 children in the family of a 'toddy climber,' as the caste which climbs coconut trees for the milk of the nuts is known, three eventually took degrees in Madras college and one of them is head master of a school and was also a delegate to the general conference at Baltimore a few years ago."

Of the need for women teachers and the advantage that is being taken of the opportunity to get hold of the younger men and children, the speaker dwelt at length, telling his hearers of the work of the lesser schools which start with the children's classes beneath the branches of the banyan or tamarind trees, through the other schools to the Isabella Coburn college at Lucknow.

140,000 Converts Yearly.

"To your society," said the bishop, "fell the honor of founding this, the first institution of learning for women in all Asia."

In addition to the evangelistic and educational work, a system of industrial training is being worked out and the speaker instanced the efforts being made in this direction to alleviate the plight of child widows who under the customs of the country have such an unhappy lot through life. Lace-making, baking for the mission stations and even work in the fields has been found most helpful in making them self-supporting.

"The lot of the child widows of India is among the unhappiest," he said. "The betrothal of these mere children even at the age of three years is as sacred with them as our institution of marriage. If her future husband dies she is condemned to perpetual widowhood, becomes the slave of the family, a virtual hewer of wood and drawer of water

CHARLES D. HILLIS.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN READY FOR CONVENTION.

Charles D. Hillis, the present chairman of the national committee, with the mallet with which he will call the committee to order. William Barnes, who is recovering from pneumonia poisoning is conducting a campaign for re-election as national committeeman and is confident of winning.

Should his calculations go wrong, there is no doubt that Mr. Barnes will bring Mr. Hillis forward as a candidate, while the faction opposing Barnes proposed Herbert Parsons, the actual boss of the New York county committee, for that office.

for the rest of her days as she can never marry under the Hindu law.

"If she marries and her husband dies his death is ascribed to some viciousness of the wife in a previous existence or even in the present for which her atonement usually lasts the remainder of her days."

Great Opportunity Now.

"The church is confronted at present with one of the most remarkable opportunities the world has ever known. Here are from 50 to 60 millions of people regarded utterly outcasts, whose lives are of less account than the lives of the cattle of the fields. Now these people are reaching out for higher and better things, reaching out for better things socially, intellectually and spiritually. In their desire to learn and the readiness with which they absorb the teachings of Christianity they are equal to anything in the higher castes. Out of these poor people are coming a multitude of earnest and devoted Christians who out of their poverty are doing their part for the church and in learning how to support themselves."

In conclusion, Bishop Robinson pictured India as the land of hope to millions in the orient where the seeds of the people turn to this country as their friend from whom they expect great things in the important part this nation is destined to play in international relations before many more years. He made an appeal to his hearers to assist in the work of saving this people for Christ. One-sixth of the world's population is unevangelized, he said, and these people were a part of the responsibility of Methodist missions to which the universal church is looking for the carrying of the gospel to fifty millions of them.

"We are baptizing more than 140,000 of them yearly," said the bishop. Our work has spread out over India in a wonderful way and it stands today as a monument to the society to which we owe so much and from which we expect so much."

Bishop Robinson closed with an expression of thanks to his hearers and an appeal for a continuance of their aid and interest in the great work of which he is at the head.

The pastor, the Rev. George M. Cranston, made a brief speech in acknowledgement of the presence of the bishop and of the work in which he is engaged. An offering was then taken and following the benediction the large audience was dismissed.

Officers Are Elected.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the Foreign Missionary Society the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. George M. Cranston, president; Mrs. E. T. Byles, Palenville, first vice president; Mrs. A. S. Carroll, Hobart, second vice president; Mrs. J. Lyman, Port Ewen, treasurer; Mrs. R. E. Bell, Kingston, corresponding secretary; Miss Emily C. Hale, Kingston, recording secretary; Miss Hallenbeck, Saugerties, superintendent of children's work; Miss Wood, Catskill, superintendent of young people's work; Mrs. P. C. Weyant, Kingston, jubilee supervisor.

Missionary in Costume.

Features of the afternoon were addresses by Mrs. W. R. Blackie and Mrs. Elmer E. Count. The former spoke on jubilee work and referred with spirit to the work of women in the mission field and the fiftieth anniversary of their advent in that department of church activities which is soon to be celebrated.

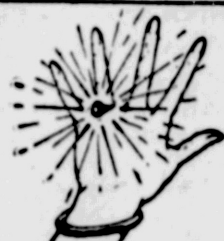

Mrs. Count, wife of the superintendent of Methodist missions for Bulgaria, appeared in costume and spoke most interestingly of that country whose fate is now joined with that of the Central Empires in the European conflict. While absent from Bulgaria for more than a year, Mrs. Count told of the significance of the break with Russia whose influence in Bulgarian affairs has been so marked and so prolonged. She then described the country and its customs, saying their roads were frightful and only to be compared with "the road to Hurley" over which she journeyed Tuesday coming to the convention.

Open Door in Bulgaria.

In the villages the life is the old life of the country and oriental in its aspects while in the cities the latest luxuries of civilization are in evidence on all sides with the influence of the occident most apparent. Of Bulgarians and their desire to learn the speaker spoke most warmly and whatever the differences of opinion over the war, she told her hearers that they should always remember that Bulgaria has permitted missionaries to preach within its boundaries whereas today in Rumania, Serbia and even Greece, no missionaries are allowed to preach and the door is closed to religious efforts outside the established church.

Today the Women's Home Missionary Society is in session with the national corresponding secretary, Mrs. May Leonard Woodruff, the chief speaker. Adjournment will follow this afternoon's session.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY FISH SPECIALS

FISH dinners are one of the first feasts that is thought of by the vacationist when he goes out for a holiday. The individual who can get to a seashore does not feel that the outing has been complete without a shore dinner. The camper who goes to the mountain does not feel that his outing has been complete unless he has been able to catch enough FISH in the rivers or lakes to have a FISH dinner. Take even the small boy, the first thing that he thinks of at vacation time is to go fishing so that he may have the pleasure of a change of diet such as fresh FISH. It is not always the sport of catching the FISH that creates this desire but it certainly is the call of nature for a change of diet, and nothing is more pleasant than FISH, which is Nature's Summer Diet

FILES $2,000 DAMAGE CLAIM

Miss Emily S. Burnett of Sleightsburgh Asks That Amount for Injuries Received in Accident on Abell Street—Other Matters Before Common Council.

In the absence of President Walter P. Crane, Alderman Connelly presided at the regular meeting of the common council held on Tuesday evening at the city hall with Aldermen McKittrick, Schick, Marquardt, Leverich, Parish, Fischer, Kullman, Shults, Brown, Hull and Purvis present. The absentees were Crane and Smith.

A claim for $2,000 damages against the city was filed by Miss Emily S. Burnett of Sleightsburgh for injuries received on Abell street on April 27. In her claim Miss Burnett stated that she was driving out Wilbur bridge when near the right to pass a wagon and as she did so an automobile came up behind the other wagon and she was forced further over to the right of the road and her wagon collided with a large stone along the road and upset, hurling her out. The damages claimed were for injuries to her horse and wagon, and for her personal injuries. She claimed the city was negligent in allowing this large stone to remain along the roadway.

The claim was referred to the corporation counsel and the auditing committee.

Rejects Claim for $100.

The report on bills and claims of the auditing committee was read and adopted. After auditing a number of bills the committee reported it had rejected the claim of Frank J. Westbrook of Ulster Park for $100 for the death of his horse which slipped and fell on O'Neil street, and was later shot by a policeman to relieve it of its sufferings.

Mayor Canfield Thanked.

Mayor Canfield sent in a communication to the common council relative to his attendance at the mayors' conference at Syracuse and gave an interesting resume of the sessions. By a rising vote the mayor was thanked for the interest he was taking in the affairs of the city, and for his report of the conference.

To Investigate Land.

City Treasurer Doremus submitted a report showing land that had been bought by the city on First and Second avenues at the tax sale in August, 1914. This land was again placed on the tax roll and sold in August, 1915, when it was bought by individual purchasers. It was again placed on the tax roll of 1915-16 and the tax sale purchaser to protect her interest paid taxes on two of the parcels. There are still taxes due on the other parcels.

In explaining the report the city treasurer wrote that the land bought by the city in 1914 would be deeded to the city in August next, but such title would be clouded because of the unpaid taxes. In 1915, the same property was again sold and bought in by individual purchasers other than the city, who in ordinary course of events will be entitled to a deed in 1917. The taxes on the first mentioned parcel for year 1915-16 have been paid by the purchaser to protect her interest, but the taxes on the other three parcels are still unpaid and will be subject to sale again in August of this year if the taxes remain unpaid at that time.

The charter is plain in defining the duties of the city treasurer in this case, but on account of the peculiar condition of the existing status of the matter he deemed it proper to give the facts to the common council so that that body may investigate the matter and examine or survey the property in question and determine whether it is advisable and economical for the city to protect its first purchase by redeeming the property from the purchaser at the second sale, and by paying the unpaid taxes thereon for years 1915-16, both amounting to $124.22, or to allow the property to pass into hands of subsequent purchasers.

Acting President Connelly appointed Aldermen Purvis, Brown and Parish as a committee to act with the corporation counsel in regard to the matter and report back to the common council.

Resolutions Adopted.

Alderman Brown offered a resolution that the July meeting be held on July 5, instead of the Fourth. Carried.

Alderman Fischer offered a resolution regarding the culvert on Abell street near Hudson street, which is clogged up and asking the board of public works to attend to it. Referred to the board of public works.

Alderman Purvis offered a resolution that the board of public works investigate the alleged dangerous turn in the road on Abell street where Miss Burnett said she was injured. Carried.

The board then adjourned.

Rotary Club Banquet.

At the Hotel Elchier tonight the regular monthly meeting of the Rotary Club will be held at 6:30 o'clock. While the weekly luncheons of Rotarians are always held at noon the monthly session is in the evening and speakers and music are featured. The speakers on tonight's program have not yet been announced.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 7, 1916.

William Jennings Bryan is reporting the Chicago convention for the New York World and all that he can see in the gathering of delegates from every State is a lot of politicians hungry for offices from which they were separated by the last Presidential election. The Republican politicians, says Bryan, are hungry for a return to office; the Progressives are hungry for a return to the Republican party, and "special interests" are hungry for an atmosphere which is not chilly and uninviting. The fact that this nation is facing a crisis in its history escapes the comprehension of the man who guided the nation in its foreign affairs as Secretary of State. The attitude of men having red blood in their veins who resent the abrogation of American principles and rights as inaugurated in the State Department by Mr. Bryan himself and continued by a weak administration to the present day cannot be understood by a statesman whose predominating thought, as revealed in his correspondence with a discredited American consul at Santo Domingo was to have the American consular service abroad provide "jobs for deserving Democrats." As between principle and jobs, all that Bryan can see is jobs. His life history shows his character clearly and his acts both as a private individual and as the head of the State Department reveal his overwhelming love for "pork" and "pork." If principle is ranged on the other side. Is it wonderful, then, that with such a brilliant example before them the Democrats in Congress should neglect preparedness and all other national issues in order to devote their entire time to the drafting of a pork barrel bill which appropriates millions of dollars for the improvement of creeks and brooks in Southern States where commerce never can be made successful without construction of canals as big as that at Panama?

The other day the wife of a Captain in the American navy took the receiver off the telephone at her home in Washington and talked by wireless to her husband in his cabin aboard one of our battleships at sea off the Virginia capes. It requires no undue stretch of the imagination to forecast in the near future the actual communication by telephone with warships in action. A strangely absent detail in all of the reports of the great North Sea engagement is as to whether wireless telegraphy played any part. It would seem that it must have served some useful end in the exchange of signals, but so far no mention has been made of any such feature. Were wireless telephony practiced during this action, the lot of the commanders would have been an unhappy one, indeed. Imagine the Kaiser at one end of the connection with Vice-Admiral Scheer at the receiving end; nor would Admiral Beatty have had things one whit easier with querulous King George to reckon with. The growing uses of wireless telephony will never meet with any cordial reception by the commanders of battle squadrons, as there is sufficient interference from the red tape of landlubber superior officers at the present time.

Since the days that the electric lighting and telegraph companies were given the use of the public streets almost every community in the country has had at one time or another more or less agitation as to the indiscriminate trimming of trees by some of these public service corporations in order to clear uninterrupted ways for their wires. Such agitations have led almost inevitably to the passage of ordinances against the cutting or unsupervised trimming of trees within the street line and the conferring of some supervisory authority over the trees in question upon some city or village official. It seems, however, that Kingston with all its wealth of shade trees has been without such protection and that vandalism in some form or other has been the only activity in the line of forestry for some years. Now that the Board of Public Works has very properly acted in the premises and devised an ordinance to prevent any more unnecessary sacrifices in this direction, it is hoped there will be a more general interest taken in the welfare of the trees. There are many in the city daily in need of care or even of cutting, and there is ample room for the exercise of common sense in this connection without the services of high-salaried experts. If this desired effect can be brought about, the fine basswood tree on Crown street will not have been sacrificed in vain.

No well-informed person questions the fact that Lord Kitchener was one of the greatest soldiers the world ever produced, both as a leader in battles and an organizer of armies. Yet is it a mistake to refer to him as "indispensable." There is no such thing. All great causes have lost leaders, but not one of them ever failed on that account. When one man drops from the head of the column there is always a successor, inferior perhaps in ability, but yet sufficient to the task. Failure comes not through the loss of captains, but through weakness in the cause itself. If all the crowned heads and most famous statesmen of Europe were to be destroyed, the final outcome of the war would not be materially affected. Even our American political parties never find themselves reduced to the necessity of nominating "the only man" for President, although one might think so to hear some patriots talk.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Casey—"Some av thim new guns will carry twenty miles." O'Brien—"At wan shot?"—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Suburbs—"But, Jack, the money that you are spending now on that garden patch we will need later for vegetables!"—Life.

"They say that audiences do not like to see husband and wife acting lovers on the stage." "Of course not. It destroys the realism."—Baltimore American.

Maude—"See Mrs. Fashum in the stage box? They say every cent her husband earns goes on her back!" Jack—"Poor chap! I thought he was doing well, but if he doesn't earn any more than that—!"—Judge.

"I'm not sure you thoroughly understand what you are talking about!" exclaimed the exasperated citizen. "I don't pretend to," replied the science citizen. "I'm simply trying to prolong the argument in the hope of obtaining enlightenment."—Washington Star.

Creditor—"You say you can't pay me that twenty thousand you owe me. Why don't you marry Miss Oldgirl; she's worth twice that amount." Brokeleigh—"Can't do that, old chap. But, I say! you might marry her yourself and pay me the difference."—Boston Transcript.

A Free-Seed Story.

Here is an old yarn, worth repeating.
Representative Hull of Iowa sent free seeds to a constituent in a franked envelope, on the corner of which was the usual words, "Penalty for private use, $300." A few days later he received a letter which read:
"I don't know what to do about those garden seeds you sent me. I notice it is $300 fine for private use. I don't want to use them for the public. I want to plant them in my private garden. I can't afford to pay $300 for the privilege. Won't you see if you can't fix it so I can use them privately? I am a law-abiding citizen, and do not want to commit any crime."—Washington Post.

More His Price

Only the fact that his cold was very severe indeed persuaded Sandy Macgregor to go to the local chemist for advice.
"Mon, A've an awfu' cauld," he said, plaintively. "Hae ye a guid cure fur it?"
"I hae," said the man of drugs promptly. "I know of a sovereign remedy."
Sandy backed slowly towards the shop door.
"Hoots ava' mon!" he said again, anxiously. "Dye no ken yin about fower-pence."—The London Answers.

How It Happened.

"Do you think any girl ever proposed in leap year, as they say, Jessie?" he asked.
"Not unless she was obliged to," answered the maiden.
"Ah! I never thought of that," he said, after a pause.
"But, George," she said, laying her hand affectionately on his arm and looking up into his eyes; "you, I am sure, will never force me to that humiliation."
"No—er—that is to say—of course not. I—"
The ice was broken and three minutes later there was a job in prospect for the parson.—The Boston Transcript.

Fully Identified.

"But I don't know you, madam," protested the paying teller to a woman who had presented a check. The woman, instead of replying haughtily, "I do not wish your acquaintance, sir," merely gave him a glassy smile and said:
"Oh, yes, you do. I don't need to identify me. I'm the red-heads' hen next door to you whose 'imps of bors' are always running across your garden. When you started to town this morning your wife said, 'Now, Henry, if you want a dinner fit to eat this evening, you'll have to leave me a little money. I can't keep this house on 'Christian Science.'"
"Here is your money," interrupted the paying teller faintly.—Philadelphia Ledger.

CITY TO OBSERVE FOURTH OF JULY

Common Council Making Arrangements For Celebrating the Day on City Hall Lawn—Citizens Committee of 140 Named to Assist.

Fourth of July will be appropriately celebrated in this city and a committee is busily engaged in making preparations for the proper observance of the day with music and speeches on the city hall lawn. The idea of holding a Municipal Independence Day Celebration was first conceived by Mayor Canfield and at his suggestion the common council appointed a committee to make preparations for holding the celebration.

Alderman Wright J. Smith is chairman of the committee, which consists of Aldermen Samuel E. Brown, George A. Leverich, Howard J. Shultis, Walter P. Crane, James W. Purvis, John A. Fischer and Mayor Canfield. Harold A. Styles was appointed secretary of the committee.

This committee has extended invitations to one hundred and forty men of the city to act as a citizens' committee. The names of the men will be found further on in this article.

At the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening the committee submitted the following report:

Your committee on Municipal Independence Day celebration which reported progress at the last meeting of your honorable body are now able to give a more complete report as to its workings and respectfully do so as follows:

Two meetings of this committee have been held and several sub-committees appointed, and the work of these committees will continue until the day of the celebration. These sub-committees are the Invitation, Music, Speakers and Platform.

Each committee has been active in its respective work.

The invitation committee, with Mayor Canfield, Jr., at its head has been exceptionally busy. Invitations have been sent to 140 citizens to act as a citizens' committee; 96 organizations in this city have been invited to attend—in a body if they care to—if not, as individuals. The principals of the public and parochial schools have been invited and they have been requested to invite the teachers and scholars under them. Invitations have been extended to the city officials and boards of the city government. And eight-hundred foreign born citizens who have been naturalized within the past five years have been invited. Each of these newly made citizens has been presented with a small American flag to wear on his coat, the same entitling him to a reserved seat in City Hall Park during the exercises.

The speakers' committee will announce the names of the speakers in the near future. Ex-President Taft and Ex-Governor Charles F. Hughes were both invited to be the orators of the day, but due to previously made engagements, they will be unable to be present.

with us. However, other men of note have been written and word is expected from them at any time. The platform committee has been active and a large portable platform has been built. It was completed before Decoration Day and was used on that day to accommodate the speakers and others.

It is impossible at this time to give a more detailed report. The committees will remain active from now until the Fourth and a full report will be made at a later date.

Respectfully submitted,
HAROLD A. STYLES,
Secretary Municipal Independence Day Celebration Committee.

The Inner Secret of New Post Toasties

A glance at one of these new corn flakes reveals novel, little bubbles which are raised by the quick, intense heat of a new process of manufacture.

These bubbles are an identifying feature of these—the only corn flakes with a self-developed, delicious corn flavor—the only flakes that do not have to depend largely on cream and sugar for palatability.

Try some of the New Toasties dry—they're good that way—the children munch them like candy. But of course the delicious new flavor is more pronounced when the flakes are served with sugar and cream.

The New Post Toasties do not waste into "chaff" in the package, and they don't mush down in cream like other flakes. They're a vast improvement over old-fashioned corn flakes and have met with enthusiastic approval everywhere.

New Post Toasties

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

Much Damage Done by Coyotes.

The annual losses of live stock on the national forest ranges of the West due to predatory animals are over $500,000. Approximately 75 per cent of the sheep losses are due to coyotes. Mountain lions are charged with killing only a few head of cattle and sheep.

HARDING STATES REPUBLICAN KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Would Forget 1912 and Unite In Effort to Give the Nation Proper Military Preparations For Defense.

Advocates Protective Policies Which Make Americans Best Paid Workers In World. Wants Square Deal For Business.

Following is the Republican keynote address, delivered before the convention by Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, temporary chairman:

Gentlemen of the Convention: It is good to greet this representative body of that American Republicanism of which I can believe—nay, I can know—that a vast majority of the people of the United States is expecting the party sponsors here assembled to write anew the sacred covenant of Republicanism and reconsecrate the party to the nation's service and the people's advancement. That same majority expects you to select a standard bearer who shall not only typify our expression of faith, but shall so enlist the confidence and trust of our American citizenship that the work of this convention will be conducted overwhelmingly at the ballot box next November.

The country, wearied afresh by a disappointing and distressing Democratic administration, is calling for Republican relief, and there is every indication, every encouragement, every confidence that the light of Republican conscience, set aflame in this convention, will illumine the way to the country's restoration.

WARREN G. HARDING.

Let us forget 1912. We did not do very well in making for harmony the last time we met. The country has regretted, let us forget and make amends to our country. We did not divide over fundamental principles, we did not disagree over a national policy. We split over methods of party procedure and preferred personalities. Let us forget the differences and find new inspiration and new compensation in an united endeavor to restore the country.

The essential principles of Republicanism are unchanged and unchanging. The lofty intent, the indelible soul and the undying spirit of Republicanism are as dominant today as in the destined beginning sixty years ago or at any time during the intervening years, and they are emphasized today by the proof recorded to Republican credit in the matchless chapters of American progress.

Principles are abiding. No political party ever has built or ever can build permanently except in conscientious devotion to abiding principles. Time never alters a fundamental truth. Conditions do change, popular interest is self asserting, and "fashioning" has its perils, as the Democratic party will bear witness, but the essentials of constructive government and attending progress are abiding and unchanging. For example, we ought to be as genuinely American today as when the founding fathers, fusing their immortal defiance in the face of old world oppressions and dedicated a new republic to liberty and justice. We ought to be as prepared for defense as Washington urged amid the anxieties of our national beginning and Grant confirmed amid the calm reflections of union restored.

Party Solidarity. It is not my understanding that the remarks of the temporary chairman are to be taken as an expression of the party faith. Such expression must come from this convention, made up of delegates who believe in popular representative government through the agency of political parties. You come directly from the people, commissioned to speak their hopes and aspirations, to utter their patriotic desires and pledge their abiding faith. Out of the convictions and judgment and wisdom as expressed by the majority will come the sacred and sincere covenant of the Republican party.

We are a voluntary organization and must find our strength in the enlistment of volunteers who find the nearest or best expression of their individual convictions in our party declarations, and there can be no treason in withdrawal if our declarations fall short in their appeal.

No Forfeiture Required. Gentlemen of the convention, the first and foremost wish in my mind is to say that which will contribute to harmony of effort and add to the assurance of victory next November. I wish that because we believe Republican success to be for the best interests of our common country. The allied hosts of the believers in Republican principles are in a vast majority in this country—when the banners of harmony are unfurled. We have witnessed the come back of our party in various states. We have seen the re-enlistment of those who believe in Republican doctrines, and victory has followed, and rejoicing has attended. No apology has been asked, no forswearing required. This is not the time for recrimination, it is the day of reconciliation.

Rededicating here and now the Republican party to the progress and glory of the republic, let us bury party prejudices with the administration which our differences put in power. I do not believe there is a really reactionary Republican bearing credentials to this convention. If there is he will depart, after our deliberations, solely and proudly a Republican, with heart aglow with the party spirit of 1916. And the welcome delegate who emphasizes his progressivism is expected to do his part in making our party a reflex of the best thought and best intent of sincere commitment to the uplift and progress of the American people, thereby strengthening party purpose instead of magnifying individual belief, and he, too, will find new rejoicing in being a Republican. No party can endure which is not progressive.

Representative Government. In building the surpassing temple of the republic, which we have been doing to the astonishment, sometimes the envy, sometimes the admiration of the world and oftentimes inspiring others by our example, there ever will be modifications and additions to meet the public need and conform to popular ideals. We do not fear to imitate nor fail to originate, but there can be no discord about underlying foundations or essential walls or proved arches or stately columns. Mine is a deep conviction that the founding fathers were divinely inspired, and the wisdom of representative popular government is proved in the surpassing achievement.

It is not alone the miracle of accomplishment which deepens our reverence; it is not alone the conviction that we have built the first seemingly dependable popular government on the earth and exalted all its citizenship, which adds to our faith, but we are the oldest of existing civilized nations, with one passing exception, continued under one form of government, and under that form we have developed the highest standard of living in all the world. Surely we must be right.

Much of the discussion of the hour is hinged upon a world at war. We need not wonder thereat, because the enormity of the conflict and the influence of its horrors have set mankind in upheaval. The traditions of civilization have been broken, and the international laws have been ignored. There is a tidal wave of distress and disaster; there are violent emotions and magnified fears. There are the extremes of incalculable sacrifices and measureless new fortunes, not all American. There are new wonders and new hindrances in commerce, changed balances of trade, new marvels in finance and utterly changed economic conditions. These have attended our progress in our foreign relations as difficult as those which the individual citizen experiences whose every neighbor is involved in deadly quarrel. Everything is abnormal except the depleted condition of the federal treasury, which is characteristic of Democratic control and the facility of the administration for writing varied notes without effective notes.

Unarmed America. Amid these conditions has stood this unarmed giant, typifying the American republic, neutral and sane, to whom the neutral nations have turned for leadership. Our national unselfishness has been proved, our devotion to humanity had been established, our commitment to international justice had long been proclaimed. The world had previously heard the voice of American fearlessness, and all the conditions single us out for leadership among the neutral powers, but the administration at Washington spoke with more rhetoric than resolution, and we came to realize that the warring powers soon came to know that the official American voice lacked the volume of determined expression that once demanded international heed, and we lacked the strength of confidence in our own defense.

It is too early to estimate the debt and credit account of the European war with civilization. Out of measureless cost and inestimable heroism must come a rebirth of individual spirituality, reawakened national hopes, new liberties and new baptisms in patriotism which must prove some compensation.

For National Defense. Perhaps it is a reminder more than a discovery, but there has come to us a conviction that this great nation, rich in resources and strong in patriotic manhood, has been negligent concerning its own defense. We have dwelt in fancied rather than real security. Pride mingles with regret in this because it suggests the mind of a nation so free from intended offense that there was no cultivated thought of needed defense. Our righteousness of purpose is portrayed in our trust in unarmed safety. But there is a warning in bleeding Europe, and there is call today for prudent, patriotic and ample national defense. There is no mistaking the sentiment. We are not thinking of the hysteria. We need not be moved by a preparedness which is partitioned in conception. We need not believe in a defense propaganda inspired by those who aim to wax fat in the production of arms and munitions because there is none. I deplore the teaching that an anxiety about our national defense is inspired by greed. We rejoice in free speech and untrammeled opinion, but patriotism is illy promoted by the imputation of false motives, whether aimed at those who believe in defense or those who doubt its wisdom. Such a teaching rends the concord of citizenship, which may develop a worse peril from within than from any enemy without.

Though we do not pretend to be exclusive in our devotion, we Republicans believe, sincerely and soberly, in adequate national defense. We have always believed in an ample navy, as invincible in modern might as John Paul Jones builded in our freedom's earliest fight. We have in mind a protected commerce on the waters and a seacoast secure in strong naval defense. We were building a high rank among naval powers when the Democratic party interrupted, and we subscribe to a stronger commitment now because of a new realization of the envy which our wealth and our commerce invite and a new appreciation of our commanding place in the affairs of the world. I shall not say that it is ours to have the greatest navy in the world, but, noting the elimination of distance and the passing of our one time isolation, we ought to have a navy that fears none in the world and can say any time and anywhere, "These are American rights and must be respected."

Economy in Security. It is not for me to specify the provisions for naval defense. Since modern warfare is in large part a conflict of brains, so must naval defense be devised in highest intelligence. Let us strengthen every arm—air, submarine, fleet cruisers and great dreadnaughts. Let him who is anxious about the cost remember that Republican policies afford the ample means without conscious burdens upon the people. Every forward American citizen, whatever his activity, knows that the cost of insurance—against accident, theft, fire, flood or thunderbolt, assessed as a fixed charge upon his income, is worth its cost in peace of mind, though loss never attends. Moreover, under any system security is economy itself.

There are manifest differences about our developments for military defense. The president made a trip from the coast to the valley of the Missouri to tell the American people the need of preparedness. It might have been more seemly to tell the story to congress, for that body was in session and empowered to act, and seemingly ever ready to testify obedience. However, congress undertook to provide an army for defense, and the majority wobbled between pacification and preparedness until the Republican minority in the senate put something real in the pending measure. We Republicans made a rational response to the call of the land, but Democratic insufficiency and inefficiency are recorded in the conference amended act and a federal nitrate plant to supply powder to the patriots and pap to the paternalists and federal fertilizer to the farmers in competition with private enterprise is the great constructive offering of a Democratic majority.

Until the civilized world is pledged and pledged to peace, and until civilization commits nations to the nobler practices of the individuals who constitute them, in which I would have America lead, this republic will have need for a basic army and a ready preparation for military defense. We proclaim justice and we love peace, and we mean to have them—and we are not too proud to fight for them.

No Curses of Militarism. Let me not apprehend the curse of militarism in this fair land. We declare unilaterally against it. Our free citizenship, walking confidently, absorbed in the triumphs of peace, would tolerate no such blight on American institutions. There is to be no surrender of cherished ideals. With that yearning for peace which has marked our continued development, with that same commitment to justice which has given us front rank in the onward march of civilization, with that rare unselfishness which led us to unseath the sword for humanity's sake and put all territorial aggrandizement aside, with that belief in the square deal, individual, national and international, which is the foundation of American faith, we mean to go on, an exemplar of peace to all the nations, an arbiter of justice to all the world, a promoter of righteousness to all the people of the earth.

The Protective Policy. Substance is the first requisite of existence, and we have the higher American standard of living because of the Republican protective policy which makes of Americans the best paid workmen in all the world. Out of the abundance of employment and higher compensation, together with the beckoning opportunity which offers every reward, we Americans have attracted the laborers of the earth and set new standards here.

It is not for me to put the stamp of relative importance on pending issues. The intelligent voters will determine that for themselves. But I know what they are thinking, and they believe that the protective policy which made us industrially and commercially eminent is necessary to preserve that eminence. I know they want it restored and maintained. For myself I prefer a protective and productive tariff which prospers America first.

Moreover, I like the abiding consistency of our unchanging position upon this policy. The Republican convention of 1860 which gave to the nation and all history the nomination of Lincoln made this simple and ample utterance:

"That, while providing revenue for the support of the general government by duties upon imports, sound policy requires such an adjustment of these imports as to encourage the development of the industrial interests of the whole country, and we commend that policy of national exchanges which secures to the working men liberal wages, to agriculture remunerative prices, to mechanics and manufacturers an adequate reward for their skill, labor and enterprise and to the nation commercial prosperity and independence."

We might fittingly reiterate that utterance today. The failure of revenues under existing Democratic policy, the necessary resort to the imposition of direct and offensive taxation—war taxes on a people at peace—to meet deficiencies which ever attend Democratic control, the depression and disaster which followed Democratic revision which were relieved rather than caused by the European war, all these argue the Republican restoration.

Temporary Prosperity. No one disputes a temporary prosperity in our land today. But it is sectional in its factory, fictitious in its exultations and perverting in its tendency. Worse, it is the gold sluiced from the river of blood, poured out by the horrifying sacrifice of millions of our fellow men. God forbid that we should boast a prosperity wrought in such waste of human life. We had rather rejoice in the prosperity of peace. We had rather boast our good fortune won from the world as it stands erect, in a fair contest, where men openly contend for the laurels of industry and the garlands of trade. I do not mean that we must "sharpen our wits in competition with the world," for we tried that and involuntarily turned back to cutting our production and severing thousands from American payrolls. There was no cut in the cost of living, but a visible hack at the capacity to live.

The Democratic party is always concerned about the American consumer. Our Republican achievement is the making of a nation of prospering producers. Far better a high cost of living and ability to buy than a lowering of cost attended by destruction of purchasing capacity.

The Cost of Living. It is worth while to recall the magnified importance given to the high cost of living four years ago, first, to emphasize Democracy's failure to reduce it, though it risked and almost accomplished the ruin of our good fortune in attempting it; second, to declare there is no such thing. What was thought to be the high cost were only the higher demands and the larger capacity to buy, which were the natural reflexes of the higher standard of living reared under Republican protection.

The one notable advance in cost has propped the American farmer, for whose belittling share in good fortune we have stood unflinchingly and sincerely. His reward is a Republican achievement, and we prefer to cling to the conditions which brought to agriculture its delayed but deserved reward and hold it secure in Republican maintenance of a home market unmatched in all the world. More, we want our basic prosperity to be home created and home sustained and not dependent on conditions abroad.

Democratic Repentance. The nations abroad and the Democratic party at home are bearing witness to Republican wisdom. German industrial self reliance is the sequence to her adoption of a Republican protective tariff, and England's manifest conversion to this fostering plan will magnify the prophetic wisdom of Republican protectionists. Even the Democratic party is penitent now and makes confession in action if not in words. The proposed destruction of American sugar has been repealed, and stimulated grief about the American breakfast table has been put aside. With that facility for changing position which has been made manifest from Baltimore to Vera Cruz, the party in power proposes to restore the tariff commission which it had hastened to destroy.

This change of attitude is not because of its great and manifest love of commission alone, but because failure to write across every paragraph of Democratic revision, and fear is haunting the White House slumbers. The Wilson administration has sensed the country's anxiety about industrial conditions when the revelry in munitions and the immunity granted by war are ended. It has made a reflective estimate of the perils of 1914, once called psychological, and means to apply a stolen remedy, with more concern about the effects than the ethics involved. We do not oppose a tariff commission. We favor it. It is a Republican creation.

Square Deal For Business. No honest business in this country is too big to be good and useful or too little to be protected and encouraged, and both big and little deserve the American shield against destruction by foreign competition and protection from the raiders, political or otherwise, at home. Business and its agencies of transportation are so inseparable from each other and from the common weal that the political party which does not pledge them a square deal, no more or less, does not deserve the confidence of the people. The strength of the business heart shows in every countenance in all the land, and the weakness of that heart holds a nation ill. We must strengthen the heart of American business in government co-operation rather than official opposition.

It is not inspiring to recite Democratic failures. I shall not dwell on that party's insincerity or incapacity. The country indicts and the record convicts. It proclaimed the sacredness of its pledges, and then profaned them. It professed economy and is staggered by its own extravagance. It has turned adequacy of revenue under indirect and unfair taxes to insufficiency and direct taxation. It has espoused the freedom of the seas and wrought only the freedom of the Panama canal.

Our Widened Relationship. One century of marvelous development has led us into another century of international sponsorship. This mighty people, idealizing popular government and committed to human progress, can no longer live within and for ourselves alone. Obliterated distance makes it impossible to stand aloof from mankind and escape wide responsibility. If we are to become the agency of a progressive civilization and God's great intent—and to believe otherwise is to deny the proofs of American development—we must assume the responsibilities of influence and example and accept the burdens of enlarged participation. The cloistered life is not possible to the potential man or the potential nation. Moreover, the Monroe doctrine, stronger for a century's maintenance, fixes an obligation of new world sponsorship and old world relationship. Our part must not be dictatorial; it must be trusted leadership in a fraternity of American republics.

Our Strength at Home. To meet the obligations we must first make sure of maintained mental, moral and physical health at home. It is good to recall that ours is the only major political party ever formed in this country on a great moral issue. Our first proclamation was human liberty, to be glorified by the spiritual and material development of a free people. We opened the way to higher human attainments and emphasized human rights under the guarantees of civil liberty. We need only to go on, imbued with the spirit which has thus far pointed our way. The light of a moral people is the halo of liberty itself. Let us be honest not only in proclamation, but in practice; not alone in campaigns, but in incumbency of office; not only before altars of worship, but in our daily affairs and in every human relationship. If popular government is to be held dependable and command the confidence as well as the loyalty of its citizenship political parties and their platforms and their spokesmen must be honest and sincere.

The American Spirit. In the travail of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness the American spirit was born. Set aglow at Bunker Hill, it was reflected in the faces of the patriots of a fearless republic, where men dedicated themselves to the solemn and momentous task which was traced by an infinite hand. They were not Americans by birth, but they were dedicated Americans in the baptismal rites of a new republic and a new patriotism. They could not all sign the Declaration of Independence, but they committed all Americans to it for all succeeding time. They could not all join in making the constitution, but they pledged the succeeding millions of Americans to its everlasting defense.

There were stalwart Americans then—Americans from Great Britain with British ideals and their devotion to orderly government. There were Americans from the land of Napoleon and Lafayette to give of the enthusiasm and heroism of France in establishing new freedom. There were Americans from Germany to fight the battles of the republic and blend their sturdiness and thoroughness in the progress of a new people, not a new race. There were Americans from the green fields of Ireland, with a passion for liberty; Americans from southern Europe to battle for opportunity. There were Americans who came from oppression and stood erect in the freedom of the republic. They all made common cause. There was lack of homogeneity of race, but there was kinship of soul, and that soul was American. The gates to our ports have swung inward ever since. There has been a welcome to the foreign born whom we asked to drink freely of the waters of our political life and find their places in the sun of American opportunity. They are an inseparable and important and valued part of American citizenship, and the few zealous of any origin who violate our neutrality do not and can not impugn the loyalty or the American patriotism of that great body which adds to the swelling chorus of

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Sweet land of liberty,
Sweet land of liberty.

It is not surprising that in their hearts there is sympathy or partiality for the land of their nativity when it is involved in a life and death struggle like that which saturated Europe with the blood of their kinsmen. Search your hearts deeply, my countrymen. One must be human to be an American, but he must have human sympathies and human loves, and I should pity the foreign born and the sons of foreign born whose very souls are not wrung by the cataclysmal sorrow of the old world. But sorrow is the test of soul and the very altar of reconciliation. This is the momentous hour for the blazing soul of American allegiance. The spirit of the fathers is calling, and the safety of unborn Americans is demanding and the security of the republic is requiring that now and here and everywhere, under the stars and stripes, we proclaim a plain, simple, glad and unalterable Americanism. It must be the offering of loyalty and devotion and love and trust, and life, if need be, to these United States, now and everlastingly.

Submersion of Local Views. The Americanism which indexes these United States must be more than the conservation of the individual. In the great fulfillment we must have a citizenship less concerned about what the government can do for it and more anxious about what it can for the nation. There must be the submersion of local and sectional views and the standards of nationality reared in their stead. Holding to the ideals of just American rights, the government must protect those rights at home, on our borders, on the seas, in every land and under every sky.

Our Foreign Relations. Seeking to practice the very Americanism I preach as Republican gospel, I am reluctant to speak of a division of American sentiment relating to our foreign affairs. One must be an American first and a partisan afterward, though we believe Republicanism is the culture of highest Americanism. But it must be said, for the truth's sake and clearer understanding, we have hungered in vain for that unflinching Americanism at Washington which is needed to exalt the American soul. There is no geographic modification of American rights. They are the same in Mexico that they are on the high seas; they are the same in Europe that they are in Asia and are sacred everywhere, and the American spirit demands their fullest protection. Whatever the ultimate solution may be, history will write Mexico as the title to the humiliating recital of the greatest fiasco in our foreign relations. Uncertainty, instability, Mexican contempt and waning self respect will be recorded in every chapter, and the pitiable story of sacrificed American lives and the destruction of lawfully held American property will emphasize the mistaken policy of watchful waiting and wabbling warfare.

Our civilization has evolved the rules of right conduct and written them into forms of government by law. They were conceived in justice and developed in righteousness. They have become instinctive in our American life and are cherished as a part of our people's inheritance. Our people do not understand any suspension; they are impelled to march on, confident and unafraid. When the spirit of American accomplishment, or the mercies of American ministrations, or the inclinations of American teaching, or the adventures of American development take our people abroad under the compacts of civilization they have a right to believe that every guaranty of American citizenship goes with them. When it does not we have forfeited the American inheritance.

Our Course With Europe. No political party can draw a variable chart for our ship of state amid Europe's warring ambitions, lust for power or battles for self preservation. Justice points the way through the safe channel of neutrality. There are dangers, seeming or real, looming on every side, but we should feel secure along the course marked by international law and our own conscientious convictions of American rights. "Straight ahead" shall be the command, and when peace comes the sober judgment of the world will exalt us ever higher and higher as a people strong in heart and noble in the espousal of justice and justice's humanity. In that worldwide respect and confidence which needs only to be preserved we shall have a lofty place in the great reconstruction, and we reasonably may hope to see this mighty republic again ministering to the re-establishment of peace and all its precious blessings.

My countrymen, Americanism begins at home and radiates abroad. The republican conception gives the first thought of a free people and a fearless people and bespeaks conditions at home for the highest human attainment. We believe in American markets for American products, American wages for American workmen, American opportunity for American genius and industry and American defense for American soil. American citizenship is the reflex of American conditions, and we believe our policies make for a fortunate people for whom moral, material and educational advancement is the open way. The glory of our progress confirms. The answered aspirations of a new world civilization acclaim. We have taken the ideal form of popular government and applied the policies which had led a continent to the altars of liberty and glorified the republic. We have justified pride and fortified hope. We need only to preserve and defend and go unflinchingly on. Power is the guarantor of peace and conscience the buckler of everlasting right. Verily, it is good to be an American. And we may rejoice to be Republicans.

FLY-BY-NIGHTS TO BE REGULATED

Common Council Adopts Ordinance Regulating Auction Sales in City—Thought to be Result of Conference Between Mayor Canfield and Business Men.

Some time ago, as told in The Freeman at the time, a number of local business men held a conference with Mayor Canfield regarding so-called "fly-by-night" auction concerns which visit different cities in the state. Tuesday evening at the meeting of the common council Alderman George A. Leverich submitted an ordinance regulating auction sales in the city of Kingston, which was unanimously adopted.

It was brought out that Kingston formerly had a so-called "fly-by-night" ordinance, but it had been declared unconstitutional. The ordinance adopted by the common council is of interest and is printed in full. It reads as follows:

The common council of the city of Kingston in pursuance of the charter of said city and the general laws of the state, do hereby ordain and enact as follows:

Section One—No person, firm or corporation, whether acting as principal or agent for another, shall conduct a public auction or a transient retail business within the city of Kingston for the sale of goods, which shall be represented or advertised as a bankrupt or assigned stock, or as goods damaged by fire, water or otherwise, or as sold below cost, or to close out an estate, or by like representation or device without first obtaining a license so to do from the chief of police which shall be countersigned by the mayor.

Section Two—The owner of such stock of goods shall apply for such license by verified petition, stating his or its name, residence, street, and number of the proposed place of selling and setting forth in detail the goods to be sold and what facts are to be represented or advertised as to the same and the length of time for which a license is desired, and shall furnish to the mayor and the chief of police such further proof as shall be necessary to establish the truth of the facts stated in said petition.

Section Three—The mayor and chief of police shall have authority to issue such license as aforesaid, except as to auction sales between sunset and eight o'clock a. m., which are forbidden; and which license shall state that it is issued upon condition that such goods are as represented in said application, and that the same shall not be represented or advertised otherwise, and that no other goods shall be advertised, represented or sold under said license, and that inspection fees shall be paid upon demand as hereinafter made, and that such fees shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Bond Law and the general laws of the state and of local ordinances.

Section Four—The chief of police shall cause such inspection to be made from time to time as may be necessary to determine whether the conditions of said license are being complied with.

Section Five—The applicant shall pay for such license for each thirty days or less during which said license is to run, a sufficient sum to reimburse the city for the expense of said investigation and the issuing of said license, not exceeding fifty dollars, and not to exceed ten dollars for each subsequent inspection, such respective amounts to be determined by the chief of police.

Section Six—No person, firm or corporation shall exhibit for sale or sell any goods, wares and merchandise other than hereinbefore or hereinafter mentioned in said city at public auction or sale by bid without first obtaining a license so to do from the chief of police which shall be countersigned by the mayor. The fee for such license shall be as follows: For one day, three dollars; for one week, ten dollars; for one month, twenty dollars; and for one year, fifty dollars. Such auction shall not be held between sunset and eight o'clock a. m., and any such license shall so provide.

This section shall not apply to the sale of household furniture, farming utensils, horses, cattle and hay by the householder or farmer upon his own respective residential premises when such person is not engaged in that line of business.

Section Seven—The mayor or chief of police may revoke any such license for any violation of the conditions thereof, and such license shall become void upon any such violation whether so revoked or not, or either of them may suspend such license during an investigation as to whether any of such conditions have been violated.

Section Eight—All ordinances or parts thereof insofar as the same are inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Section Nine—The violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Section Ten—This ordinance shall be published twice in each of the official papers of the city, and shall take effect immediately after the publication thereof.

Beautiful Photographs. In the window of E. Winter's store on John street are several excellent views of the big Ashokan reservoir, a picture of Kingston Point Park with one of the big Day Line steamers leaving the pier and a picture of the Old Dutch Church yard taken from the junction of Main and Wall streets. All of the photographs are masterpieces of the photographer's art and are exceptionally clear and distinct. The views of the Ashokan reservoir are taken from excellent view points and show the large quantities of water already impounded. One of the views is taken looking north, showing the high bridge and mountains to the north of the reservoir.

1364—A Simple and Becoming Dress, Suitable for House, Porch or Business Wear—Ladies' House Dress With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths.

This desirable model has a popular 4 piece skirt, made with a neat lap tuck at the back seam. The waist shows a square yoke (a new style feature), with plaited fullness at the fronts. The sleeve in wrist length is stylish and quite in keeping with the shirt waist style of the waist. In elbow length it is attractively cool and comfortable. The skirt has "popular" pockets, is cut out with ample fullness, and will be very satisfactory as to fit and style. This design is fine for gingham, chambray, percale, voile, linen, galatea, seersucker if used as a house dress. For business wear, tub silk, voile, crepe, poplin or taffeta would be nice. The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7 yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about three yards at the foot.

Technical Difficulty. At one of the rehearsals of a play the "supers" had to go up to an altar and kneel before it. After rehearsing five or six times the stage manager lost his temper with them and shouted: "No, no! Where are your genuflections?" The chief "super" scratched his head with a puzzled expression on his face. "Well, sir," he said, apologetically, "we haven't had them from the property master!"

Optimistic Thought. Every light has its shadow and every shadow hath a succeeding morning.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN DIES OF APOPLEXY

Itinerant Awning Maker Died Suddenly on Tuesday at Boarding House on Catherine Street—Coroner Kelly Seeking Relatives.

An itinerant awning maker who has been coming to Kingston for the past two or three years, was seized with a stroke of apoplexy on Tuesday morning at his boarding house, No. 238 Catherine street, and died that afternoon. Coroner Kelly has taken charge of the remains and is seeking relatives. Where he boarded he was known only by the name of "Joe." On his arm was found tattooed the initials "H. M." Among his belongings were found no clues to his identity. At the boarding house it was said that he was seized with a stroke shortly after breakfast and lay down on a couch in one of the rooms and then later rose and walked to his room and got in bed, where he died. He was thought to have come here from Astoria, Long Island, and had been in the city about two weeks.

STABBER HELD TO AWAIT TRIAL

Samuel R. Christian who Stabbed Herbert Harbeck in Saloon Brawl Held for Two Days When it is Expected Harbeck will be Able to Appear in Court.

This morning Samuel R. Christian the Italian who stabbed Herbert Harbeck with a pen knife in a saloon on Broadway, was arraigned before Recorder Lang, who adjourned the case for two days when it was expected that Harbeck would have recovered sufficiently from his wounds to appear in court. In default of $1,000 bail Christian was remanded to jail.

As told in the Freeman on Tuesday the affair started in a saloon run by an Italian, and known as the Big Chief's on Broadway near Field Court. Christian claimed that Harbeck threw a beer glass at him and then punched him. As Harbeck was a bigger man physically than Christian the latter drew a pen knife and stabbed Harbeck. While the wounds bled profusely, it was found on examination at the Kingston City Hospital that they were not as serious as expected.

WHAT WILL THE CONVENTIONS DO?

That the sentiment in favor of state and national prohibition has greatly increased of late years, all well-informed people know.

Some forty years ago, believing that there was but one way to bring it about, a comparatively small number of the voters of this county formed the Prohibition party. But most people have remained with the dominant parties, believing that they would sooner or later declare for the destruction of the drink traffic.

Hitherto the leading parties have not espoused the cause, but greater pressure is being brought to bear upon them this year than ever before, and some think that a Prohibition plank will be placed in platforms. W. J. Bryan, in an address recently delivered before the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Saratoga, expressed his belief that the time was near at hand. Others, like former Governor Hanley of Indiana, think that it is not probable, nor even possible. He believes this so thoroughly that a few weeks since, in an editorial in his own paper, he withdrew from the party with which he had all his life been identified.

The general conference above mentioned, in its ringing utterances on National Prohibition incorporated this as a part of its report: "Resolved, that we earnestly urge all political parties in the national conventions to declare in favor of congress submitting to the legislatures of the states for their ratification an amendment to the federal constitution absolutely prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors throughout the United States and its possessions, and that pending the submission of such amendment congress shall enact statutory prohibition to the full extent of its present constitutional powers for the nation, including the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, the canal zone, and all the island reservations, ships, buildings and premises under federal police jurisdiction," and the secretary of the conference was directed to immediately have these resolutions neatly printed and placed before the several national political conventions to meet during the year.

But other pressure has been brought to bear on these conventions. For some time leading temperance men in various states have been getting signatures to this pledge or similar ones: "I will give my influence and vote only to such candidates and parties as are committed by state and national platform declaration to the prohibition of the liquor traffic."

The plan has been to secure the signatures of five million voters to this pledge. Something like one million have been secured.

Latterly the movement has been reinforced by the formation of a "Committee of Sixty," who are working along this same line. This committee is composed of leading men throughout the nation. The honorary president is Chancellor David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford Jr. University. The president is Daniel A. Poling, associate president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor while men like Luther Burbank, the California plant wizard, Dr. Samuel Dickey, of Albion College, Hon. Richmond P. Hobson, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Ernest Charnick, of the Anti-Saloon League, Hon. Arthur Cooper, corresponding secretary, John Keane, Peter Barmann, Jr., James McCarthy, governor of Massachusetts, are prominent members.

What the end will be, none can tell.

A meeting will be held in the Clinton Avenue Church Friday evening, June 9, at 7:30, at which time this matter will be discussed in addresses by those who have made a study of this movement, and all men and women, too, who are interested in state and national prohibition are urged to be present. Some temperance songs are expected to be a feature of the meeting.

P. N. CHASE.

Students Visit Creamery.

A great many people are availing themselves of the invitation of the creamery on Downs street to visit the plant and witness the clarifying and pasteurizing of the milk. Mrs. Sam Bernstein, a few days ago, took a party of ladies and the domestic science class of the high school there, spending several hours in a most enjoyable manner. They were greatly interested in everything they saw. The manufacture of ice cream, the separation of cream from the skim milk, the churning of 200 pounds of butter at one time, the churning of cream cheese, and the clarifying and pasteurizing of the milk, and the manner of cooling it from 145 degrees to 35 degrees in five seconds. The filling of the bottles and capping automatically, together with the sterilizing of the cans, bottles and cases, were particularly interesting, from a sanitary standpoint. Much surprise was manifested when they saw the clarifier cleaned after the raw milk had passed through it. The mess that came out of it was almost unbelievable. Delicious ice cream that they saw manufactured was served with cake during their visit. Those who accompanied Mrs. Bernstein were Mrs. W. Scott Gillespie, Mrs. Ebel, Mrs. Leon G. McIntyre, Mrs. Garrison, Mrs. H. S. Jennings, Mrs. Swart, Mrs. T. D. Lewis, Mrs. Haulbeck, Mr. Hendricks and Miss Helen Bernstein. Miss Davis, instructor of the domestic science class, accompanied the students, of whom there were about thirty.

Mr. Herschmann Sang at Bethlehem.

Among the artists who acted as soloists at the eleventh Bach Festival when the Bach B. Minor Mass was given at Bethlehem, Penn., the last week in May, Arthur Herschmann, baritone, who was to have been the baritone soloist in festival oratorio concert which the Symphony Society prepared to give here this June, received the following flattering press notices from the Philadelphia and Bethlehem newspapers:

"His intonation was unusually accurate."—Public Ledger.

"Perfectly at home at all times."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Naturally rich and powerful voice."—Philadelphia Press.

"Voice of lyric quality, used with energy and earnestness."—Bethlehem Times.

Mr. Herschmann, from the time that he was engaged to sing in Kingston until the moment when it was found to be impossible to give the festival this year, has been indefatigable in helping the local organization to make a financial as well as an artistic success. Through him the soprano and tenor were engaged, and again through his interest and generosity, all of these soloists, have with most considerate appreciation of the situation released the Kingston Symphony Society from its obligation to them this year. But the Kingston Society intends that the opportunity to hear these artists next season, and has so arranged.

The usual public rehearsal for school children will be given in the afternoon, and in order that no school child may be deprived of the privilege of attending the concert, which will prove to be a liberal musical education, the rehearsal will begin until 4 o'clock, thus permitting the children from even the Poughkeepsie and Wilbur schools to attend, and that without dismissing school before the usual hour. Parents and teachers should keep this concert in mind for the children, the school tickets being but ten cents, as such a concert offers a musical education of the highest value. This winter the program was open at Winter's music store on John street for patrons. Tomorrow, Thursday morning, subscribers may exchange their tickets at the same place, and single tickets will be for sale, beginning on Friday.

When Tobacco Was New.

The finds of pipes on the sites of the camps of the parliamentary armies in England have been numerous. It is not known whether Cromwell smoked; but Milton smoked a pipe at 9 p. m. every day before retiring. However, in some cases the Puritans contrived to introduce their religion even into pipe smoking, for an old chronicler tells of a Presbyterian minister so precise that "he would not so much as take a pipe of tobacco before that he had first said grace over it."

Humor in Visitors' Books.

Witty Comments Left Behind by Dis-gusted Hotel Guests.

The custom of keeping books in hotels and boarding houses and asking visitors to leave behind them some written record of their stay has been productive of many witty effusions, the humor of which, however, could scarcely be appreciated in some cases by "mine host."

It was Quin, the actor, says London Tit-Bits, who many years ago wrote the following at the once famed Pelican Inn near Newbury:

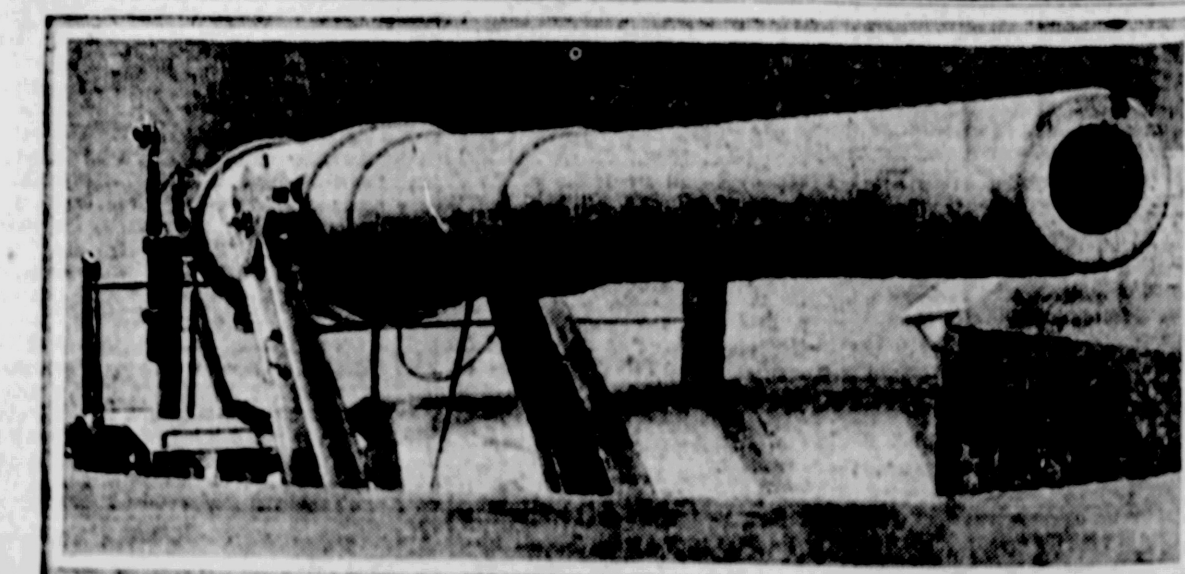

The famous inn at Speenhamland. That stands beneath the hill. May well be called the Pelican From its enormous bill.

A hotel keeper in Argentina proudly points to the following recommendation written by an English visitor:

"If you have no objection to garlic in your food, tread in your wine, mosquitoes in your bedroom and dishonors in your landlord; if you are content with a saucer for your bath and if you like being hurried out of bed in the morning by an earthquake I can, from experience, recommend this hotel."

Needless to say the landlord could not read English.

At a pretentious suburban hotel, says the London Truth, one may read: "I have pleasure in testifying to the bon ton of this hotel. Every one dresses for dinner except the cook. The proprietors give the cook next to nothing to dress for dinner." And at an old established posting house in Lancashire some ambiguous visitor entered this remark: "The food here is exceptional. I feel hungry every day."

GIANT U. S. COAST DEFENSE GUN

This photograph shows a front view of one of the big ten-inch coast defense guns at Fort Totten. It was snatched as the gun was raising to a firing position on its newly designed mounts, which are said to give the gun an additional range of three miles. These guns are for the defense of New York on the Sound.

A Handsome Car

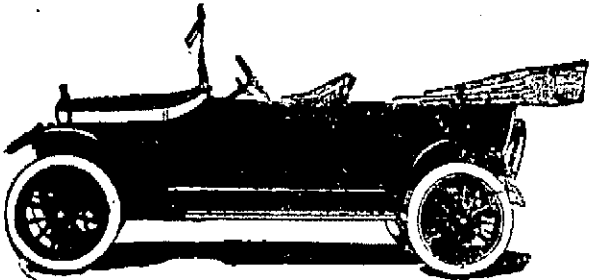

WHEN you pay several hundred dollars for an automobile, why not get a good-looking one—one that you will be proud to own, proud to drive and proud to take your friends out in? Maxwell owners have a just pride in the handsome appearance of their automobile for Maxwell Motor Cars have the same attractive lines, the same graceful design as the higher priced types.

In addition to good looks you want, of course, a reliable, sturdy and economical car. But there is no doubt in your mind on these points since the Maxwell a short time ago established the World's Motor Non-Stop Mileage Record. Any car that can run continuously for 44 days and nights, averaging 500 miles per day—22,000 miles in all and without once stopping the motor—is bound to be a well designed and well made car.

Any car that can perform such a wonderful feat on an average of one gallon of gasoline to every 22 miles is bound to be an economical car.

We have such confidence in the Maxwell car and the company behind it that we are willing to sell these cars on partial payments—and deliver the car to you when you make the first deposit. In justice to yourself you ought to know more about the Maxwell car and our pay-as-you-ride plan. All we ask is the opportunity to tell you.

BISHOP TELLS OF MISSION WORK

The missionary conference of the Kingston District of the M. E. Church was again well attended today and on Tuesday evening and the proceedings were both interesting and edifying.

Bishop Robinson on India.

Bishop J. E. Robinson was the speaker at the meeting Tuesday night which filled the church to capacity and he delivered a most interesting address on the work in that great mission field together with its needs for workers and for support from home.

A team of bullocks and a cart awaits the missionary, declared the bishop in opening and he then described the experiences of his daughter in the evangelistic work which is an annual feature in the mission field in India from February 15th to March 15th. This evangelistic campaign alone averages 10,000 baptisms and the method by which these campaigns are operated was interestingly pictured, one contingent marching from one village to another to carry the gospel message. Then the second village carries it on to another and thus in a series of religious relays a tremendous territory is covered and a vast number of people reached. All of the people are first invited to learn one text and from this the desire for more knowledge usually springs in the native breast.

"Our church was the very first to take up that method in India," declared Bishop Robinson, "and are glad to see many of the churches take up similar lines of aggressive evangelistic work."

Anxious for Education.

"Because these people are a simple people do not imagine that they are ignorant because they assimilate the truth with ease. Of the 11 children in the family of a 'toddy climber,' as the caste which climbs coconut trees for the milk of the nuts is known, three eventually took degrees in Macfar college and one of them is head master of a school and was also a delegate to the general conference at Baltimore a few years ago."

Of the need for women teachers and the advantage that is being taken of the opportunity to get hold of the younger men and children, the speaker dwelt at length, telling his hearers of the work of the lesser schools which start with the children's classes beneath the branches of the banyan or tamarind trees, through the other schools to the Isabella Coburn college at Lucknow.

140,000 Converts Yearly.

"To your society," said the bishop, "tell the honor of founding this, the first institution of learning for women in all Asia."

In addition to the evangelistic and educational work, a system of industrial training is being worked out and the speaker instanced the efforts being made in this direction to alleviate the plight of child widows who under the customs of the country have such an unhappy lot through life. Lace-making, baking for the mission stations and even work in the fields has been found most helpful in making them self-supporting.

"The lot of the child widows of India is among the unhappiest," he said. "The betrothal of these mere children even at the age of three years is as sacred with them as our institution of marriage. If her future husband dies she is condemned to perpetual widowhood, becomes the slave of the family, a virtual hewer of wood and drawer of water

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN READY FOR CONVENTION.

Should his calculations go wrong, there is no doubt that Mr. Barnes will bring Mr. Hillis forward as a candidate, while the faction opposing Barnes proposed Herbert Parsons, the actual boss of the New York county committee, for that office.

for the rest of her days as she can never marry under the Hindu law.

"If she marries and her husband dies his death is ascribed to some viciousness of the wife in a previous existence or even in the present for which her atonement usually lasts the remainder of her days."

Great Opportunity Now.

"The church is confronted at present with one of the most remarkable opportunities the world has ever known. Here are from 50 to 60 millions of people regarded utterly outcasts, whose lives are of less account than the lives of the cattle of the fields. Now these people are reaching out for higher and better things, reaching out for better things socially, intellectually and spiritually. In their desire to learn and the readiness with which they absorb the teachings of Christianity they are equal to anything in the higher castes. Out of these poor people are coming a multitude of earnest and devoted Christians who out of their poverty are doing their part for the church and in learning how to support themselves."

In conclusion, Bishop Robinson pictured America as the land of hope to millions in the orient where the minds of the people turn to this country as their friend from whom they expect great things in the future part of this nation is destined to play an important role in the world before many years. He made an appeal to his hearers to assist in the work of saving this people for Christ. One-sixth of the world's population is unevangelized, he said, and these people were a part of the responsibility of Methodist missions to which the universal church is looking for the carrying of the gospel to fifty millions of them.

"We are baptizing more than 140,000 of them yearly," said the bishop. Our work has spread out over India in a wonderful way and it stands today as a monument to this society to which we owe so much and from which we expect so much."

Bishop Robinson closed with an expression of thanks to his hearers and an appeal for a continuance of their aid and interest in the great work of which he is at the head.

The pastor, the Rev. George M. Cranston, made a brief speech in acknowledgement of the presence of the bishop and of the work in which he is engaged. An offering was then taken and following the benediction the large audience was dismissed.

Officers Are Elected.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the Foreign Missionary Society the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. George M. Cranston, president; Mrs. E. T. Byles, Paleyville, first vice president; Mrs. A. S. Carroll, Hobart, second vice president; Mrs. J. Lyman, Fort Ewen, treasurer; Mrs. R. E. Bell, Kingston, corresponding secretary; Miss Emily C. Hale, Kingston, recording secretary; Miss Hallenbeck, Saugerties, superintendent of children's work; Miss Weed, Catskill, superintendent of young people's work; Mrs. P. C. Weyant, Kingston, jubilee supervisor.

Missionary in Costume.

Features of the afternoon were addresses by Mrs. W. R. Blackie and Mrs. Elmer E. Count. The former spoke on jubilee work and referred with spirit to the work of women in the mission field and the fiftieth anniversary of their advent in that department of church activities which is soon to be celebrated.

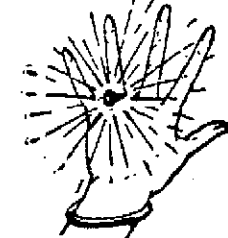

Mrs. Count, wife of the superintendent of Methodist missions for Bulgaria, appeared in costume and spoke most interestingly of that country whose fate is now joined with that of the Central Empires in the European conflict. While absent from Bulgaria for more than a year, Mrs. Count told of the significance of the break with Russia whose influence in Bulgarian affairs has been so marked and so prolonged. She then described the country and its customs, saying their roads were frightful and only to be compared with "the road to Hurley" over which she journeyed Tuesday coming to the convention.

Open Door in Bulgaria.

In the villages the life is the old life of the country and oriental in its aspects while in the cities the latest luxuries of civilization are in evidence on all sides with the influence of the occident most apparent. Of Bulgarians and their desire to learn the speaker spoke most warmly and, whatever the differences of opinion over the war, she told her hearers that they should always remember that Bulgaria has permitted missionaries to preach within its boundaries whereas today in Rumania, Serbia and even Greece, no missionaries are allowed to preach and the door is closed to religious efforts outside the established church.

Today the Women's Home Missionary Society is in session with the national corresponding secretary, Mrs. May Leonard Woodruff, the chief speaker. Adjournment will follow this afternoon's session.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY FISH SPECIALS

FISH dinners are one of the first feasts that is thought of by the vacationist when he goes out for a holiday. The individual who can get to a seashore does not feel that the outing has been complete without a shore dinner. The camper who goes to the mountain does not feel that his outing has been complete unless he has been able to catch enough FISH in the rivers or lakes to have a FISH dinner. Take even the small boy, the first thing that he thinks of at vacation time is to go fishing so that he may have the pleasure of a change of diet such as fresh FISH. It is not always the pleasure of catching the FISH that creates this desire but it certainly is the call of nature for a change of diet, and nothing is more pleasant than FISH, which is

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Oh, sing a song of six hits
Coffers full of dough,
Baseball magnates full of glee,
Watch the turnstiles go,
Round and round the wheels do spin,
Every afternoon,
Jeans of moguls bulging so
They must bust quite soon.

Baseball Comes Back.

The above jingle, when properly translated, will convey the fact that baseball has "come back." The crowds so far this season have been uniformly large. In some towns, where the teams are wallowing around in the cellar goo, the attendance has not been sufficient to force out a "restore order" squad of police. But in the municipalities where the home gang is on or near the top, the reward has come in husky game receipts.

The Indians so far this year drew almost as many fans in their home games as they did in all the 77 at-homes a year ago. The Senators are "pulling" great not only in their own pasture but also abroad. The Yankees crowds, with only about 45 of the games played, almost equal the grand total for the entire 1915 season. The amazing spirit of the Giants turned out crowds everywhere—and especially at home.

The Tigers, White Sox and Red Sox haven't been doing as well as was expected, but they are drawing a sizeable number of patrons. The Braves and Phillies are attracting well, while the Dodgers this season have been playing to crowds far beyond any in the modern history of the Brooklyn outfit.

Puzzle—Whom Does Al Manage?

Al Lippe sends this:
"In the entire world today there is not a single middleweight fighter exhibiting the class, speed, punch and all around endurance of Jeff Smith. He has met and defeated not alone the best men in his class in this country, but has gone to every part of the world in search of men shifty enough to give him a battle.

"If he has one burning ambition, and that is to meet Dillon whom he is confident of whipping. He regards Al McCoy as an alleged champion, and not even worthy of consideration in a serious manner."

$1,000 Golf Bag.

L. B. Fenner, of Burwell, Neb., owns the costliest golf bag in the world.

He went hunting in Florida last winter and fatally plunked an alligator. He shipped the hide north with instructions to have it converted into a caddy pack. A few days later he got a letter from the sporting goods house telling him the hide was that of a pearl alligator, a rare species, and that it was worth close to $1,000. "What shall we do?" asked the golf bag makers.
"Make me the bag as requested," wrote back Fenner. And they did.

Yankees Uncover Star.

The Yankees apparently have picked up a star in Catcher Al Walters. The youngster was the third stringer when the season began. Then Numamaker was rendered hors combat and a while later Alexander was forced from the field of battle by an injury.

That gave Walters a chance—and he has made good with a whoop. The kid is the peppier youngster seen in a New York uniform in years. He has shown fine backstopping ability, has a great whip, can hit with the best catchers in the game and has a remarkable knack of steadying his pitchers.

It's a treat to watch Walters in action. He is on the alert all the time and he has a brain so nimble that he frequently has outguessed the enemy and beaten them to it when they have attempted a bit of baseball trickery.

Shaw Took Chance—And Wins.

Sometimes it pays to take a chance. Captain David Shaw of Cleveland took a $120 chance on Prince Loree, a crippled trotter, last winter and it seems now that he will reap a rich reward.

Prince Loree, son of Elloror, was bred by Walter Cox, of Dover, N. H. A year or so ago he was injured—seemingly of permanent nature. Cox sold the horse at auction last fall for $50. The Pastime stables, of Cleveland, which bought him, nursed Prince Loree along for a while, but secured no results. Soon they turned him over to Al Penneck, also of Cleveland, for $50.

Shaw happened to see the limping racer one day, figured that he could cure him of his ailment, and put in a bid for him. Penneck asked something like $200 at first but Shaw David-Harmon him to $120—and got the horse.

Prince Loree was treated for a month or so in the Shaw stables under the direction of his owner. He was carefully nursed and doctored. The injury finally disappeared and then Shaw gave the once-time cripple a mild workout over a quarter mile stretch.

Prince Loree covered the distance in 3:45, which is remarkably fast time for so early in the year. Horsemen who have seen the Loree horse in his untimed workouts since feel confident he will do 2:10 or better during the summer. A 2:10 trotter for $120 is a bargain, Oscar—a rare bargain indeed.

That Town Line Bridge.

County Attorney John W. Eckert was at Monticello today, where a hearing was had before the Hon. William E. Thorpe of Catskill, as referee, in the suit brought by the town of Mamakating, Sullivan county, against the town of Shawangunk, Ulster county, to compel the latter to bear one-half the expense of a new town line bridge. The town of Shawangunk claims that the bridge is entirely within Sullivan county, inasmuch as the course of the stream over which the bridge is constructed was changed a number of years ago. Hon. George H. Smith is counsel for the town of Mamakating.

The "hoodoo" of the Polo Grounds still sticks to the Giants. The Pirates did the trick yesterday.

It was the fifth defeat out of eight games the Giants have suffered since their winning streak of 17 straight. Meanwhile the Dodgers are climbing higher. They made telling use of their bats against the Reds.

It was another great day for the western teams. The Reds were the only ones to fall by the wayside.

The Tigers are getting back in the hunt. The world champions could not ward off the attack.

Saltee's southpaw slants were too much for the Braves.

Spur won the Withers Stakes at Belmont. He didn't need urging.

The Phillies had a taste of the slugging abilities of the Cubs. It was a bitter pill.

Mr. Coykendall a Trustee.

Frederick Coykendall of New York city, son of the late S. D. Coykendall of this city, on Tuesday was elected one of the alumni trustees of Columbia University at the second annual Alumni Federation nominating convention. He is the eighth trustee to be elected by the alumni since the inauguration of the system whereby six alumni trustees are kept on the board. Mr. Coykendall was a member of the class of 1895, college, and 1897, school of mines. He is president of the Alumni Association and vice president of the Alumni Federation.

Scudder's Aerial Voyage.

Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., has returned home from an automobile trip to Ithaca, where he attended his class reunion of Cornell University. While in Ithaca, Mr. Scudder went up in one of Thomas Brothers' biplanes, the factory where the biplanes are manufactured being located at Ithaca. The firm recently delivered two hydroplanes to the United States government and has been supplying the European governments with biplanes for some time.

An Automobile Accident.

While returning home from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Don M. Henry at Prattsville, Greene county, last night, Floyd Vogt and Miss Jessica Compton met with an automobile accident near Grand Gorge. Miss Compton was slightly cut but Mr. Vogt was uninjured. They returned to Kingston today. Mr. Vogt is the well known soloist at St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church and Miss Compton is stenographer for W. H. Rider.

Short on Birthdays.

Arthur was born on February 29, so his birthday comes but once in four years. At his first day in school, having been asked his name, address, etc., he was further questioned as to his birthday. "My birthday was the last day in February, two years ago," was his surprising reply.

KILLDEER
(Oxyechus vociferus)

Length, ten inches. Distinguished by its piercing and oft-repeated cry—killdeer.

Range: Breeds throughout the United States and most of Canada; winters from central United States to South America.

Habits and economic status: The Killdeer is one of the best known of the shorebird family. It often visits the farmyard and commonly nests in pastures or cornfields. It is rather suspicious, however, and on being approached takes flight with loud cries.

It is noisy and restless, but fortunately most of its activities result in benefit to man. The food is of the same general nature as that of the upland plover, but is more varied. The killdeer feeds upon beetles, grasshoppers, caterpillars, ants, bugs, caddis flies, dragonflies, centipedes, spiders, ticks, oyster worms, earthworms, snails, crabs and other crustacea.

Among the beetles consumed are such pests as the alfalfa weevil, cotton-boll weevil, clover-root weevil, clover-leaf weevil, pine weevil, billbugs, white grubs, wireworms, and leaf beetles.

The bird also devours cotton worms, cotton cutworms, horseflies, mosquitoes, cattle ticks, and crawfish. One stomach contained hundreds of larvae of the saltmarsh mosquito, one of the most troublesome species.

The killdeer preys extensively upon insects that are annoying to man and injurious to his stock and crops, and this should be enough to remove it from the list of game birds and insure its protection.

SPELLERS OF ESOPUS.

Town Contest Held in Preparation for County Contest in August.

The spelling contest for the town of Esopus was held at School No. 13, Port Ewen, Tuesday. Each district in the town being entitled to two representatives, they having been selected by tests given by the teacher at the request of the district superintendent.

A spelling bee was held to determine the second representative, each town being entitled to two representatives. Superintendent Gillette lined up the contestants and pronounced the words thick and fast for a long time without effect. Finally the

Common Council Making Arrangements For Celebrating the Day on City Hall Lawn—Citizens Committee of 140 Named to Assist.

Fourth of July will be appropriately celebrated in this city and a committee is busily engaged in making preparations for the proper observance of the day with music and speeches on the city hall lawn. The idea of holding a Municipal Independence Day Celebration was first conceived by Mayor Canfield and at his suggestion the common council appointed a committee to make preparations for holding the celebration.

Alderman Wright J. Smith is chairman of the committee, which consists of Aldermen Samuel E. Brown, George A. Leverich, Howard J. Shultis, Walter P. Crane, James W. Purvis, John A. Fischer and Mayor Canfield. Harold A. Styles was appointed secretary of the committee.

This committee has extended invitations to one hundred and forty men of the city to act as citizens' committee. The names of the men will be found further on in this article.

At the meeting of the common council Tuesday evening the committee submitted the following report:

Your committee on Municipal Independence Day celebration which reported progress at the last meeting of your honorable body are now able to give a more complete report as to its workings and respectfully do so as follows:

Two meetings of this committee have been held and several sub-committees appointed, and the work of these committees will continue until the day of the celebration. These sub-committees are the Invitation, Music, Speakers and Platform.

Each committee has been active in its respective work.

The invitation committee, with Mayor Canfield, Jr., at its head has been exceptionally busy. Invitations have been sent to 140 citizens to act as citizens' committee; 86 organizations in this city have been invited to attend—in a body if they care to—if not, as individuals. The principals of the public and parochial schools have been invited and they have been requested to invite the teachers and scholars under them. Invitations have been extended to the city officials and heads of the city government. And citizens of foreign born citizens who have been registered within the past five years have been invited. Each of these newly made citizens has been registered with a small American flag pin to wear on his coat, the same entitling him to a reserved seat in City Hall Park during the exercises.

The speakers' committee will announce the names of the speakers in the near future. Ex-President Taft and Ex-Governor Charles E. Smith are both invited to be the orators of the day, but due to previously made engagements, they will be unable to be.

with us. However, other men of note have been written and word is expected from them at any time.

The platform committee has been active and a large portable platform has been built. It was completed before Decoration Day and was used on that day to accommodate the speakers and others.

It is impossible at this time to give a more detailed report. The committee will remain active from now until the Fourth and a full report will be made at a later date.

Respectfully submitted,
HAROLD A. STYLES,
Secretary Municipal Independence Day Celebration Committee.

The Inner Secret of New Post Toasties

A glance at one of these new corn flakes reveals novel, little bubbles which are raised by the quick, intense heat of a new process of manufacture.

These bubbles are an identifying feature of these—the only corn flakes with a self-developed, delicious corn flavor—the only flakes that do not have to depend largely on cream and sugar for palatability.

Try some of the New Toasties dry—they're good that way—the children munch them like candy. But of course the delicious new flavor is more pronounced when the flakes are served with sugar and cream.

The New Post Toasties do not waste into "chaff" in the package, and they don't mush down in cream like other flakes. They're a vast improvement over old-fashioned corn flakes and have met with enthusiastic approval everywhere.

LECTURES AT KATRINE.

Manager Hook's Lecture Supplementing by Talk on European Trip.

The members and friends of Lake Katrine Grange enjoyed a pleasant and profitable literary hour on Monday evening when Mr. Hook, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau gave an illustrated talk on "Some of Our Common Insect Pests." A large number of lantern slides giving the life history of such destructive pests as the white grub and cutworm, with whose work we are all so familiar, were thrown on the screen with the splendid projecting lantern owned by the bureau and described by Mr. Hook in so simple a manner that those who saw and heard could not fail to be in a better condition to control these increasingly annoying and expensive visitations.

After the lecture a number of slides were shown by Bro. A. W. Trueman, illustrating a trip to Europe, together with a quantity of views made by himself of New York and vicinity, Niagara Falls, Boston and many characteristic scenes in our own land that we are all beginning to appreciate more and more as we daily realize the rightful conditions existing elsewhere.

HARDING STATES REPUBLICAN POLICIES IN KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Would Forget 1912 and Unite In Effort to Give the Nation Proper Military Preparations For Defense.

Advocates Protective Policies Which Make Americans Best Paid Workers in World. Wants Square Deal For Business.

Following is the Republican keynote address, delivered before the convention by Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, temporary chairman:

Gentlemen of the Convention: It is good to greet this representative body of that American Republicanism which is centered in the high hopes of the republic. I can believe—nay, I know—that a vast majority of the people of our United States is expecting the party sponsors here assembled to write anew the sacred covenant of Republicanism and reconsecrate the party to the nation's service and the people's advancement. That same majority expects you to select a standard bearer who shall not only typify our expression of faith, but shall also enlist the confidence and trust of our American citizenship that the work of this convention will be conducted overwhelmingly at the ballot box next November.

The country, wearied afresh by a disappointing and distressing Democratic administration, is calling for Republican relief, and there is every inspiration, every encouragement, every confidence that the light of Republicanism, shining in this convention, will illumine the way to the country's restoration.

WARREN G. HARDING.

Let Us Forget 1912.

We did not do very well in making the harmony the last time we met. The country has regretted, let us forget and make amends to our country. We did not divide over fundamental principles we did not discuss our national policy. We split over methods of party procedure and preferred personalities. Let us forget the differences and find new inspiration and new compensation in an united endeavor to restore the country.

The essential principles of Republicanism are unchanged and unchanging. The lofty intent, the indestructible soul and the undying spirit of Republicanism are as dominant today as in the destined beginning sixty years ago or at any time during the intervening years, and they are emphasized today by the proof recorded to Republican credit in the matchless chapters of American progress.

Principles Are Abiding.

No political party ever has builded or ever can build permanently except in conscientious devotion to abiding principles. Time never alters a fundamental truth. Conditions do change, popular interest is self asserting, and "paramountness" has its perils, as the Democratic party will bear witness, but the essentials of constructive government and attending progress are abiding and unchanging. For example, we ought to be as genuinely American today as when the founding fathers, among their immortal deeds in the face of old world oppressions and dedicated a new republic to liberty and justice. We ought to be as prepared for defense as Washington urged amid the anxieties of our national beginning and Grant confirmed amid the calm reflections of union restored.

Party Solidarity.

It is not my understanding that the remarks of the temporary chairman are to be taken as an expression of the party faith. Such expression must come from this convention, made up of delegates who believe in popular representative government through the agency of political parties. You come directly from the people, commissioned to speak their hopes and aspirations, to utter their patriotic desires and pledge their abiding faith. Out of the convictions and judgment and wisdom as expressed by the majority will come the sacred and sincere covenant of the Republican party.

We are a voluntary organization and we find our strength in the endorsement of volunteers who find the nearest or best expression of their individual convictions in our party declarations, and there can be no truce in withdrawal if our declarations fall short in their appeal.

No Forfeiting Required.

Gentlemen of the convention, the first and foremost wish in my mind is to say that which will contribute to harmony of effort and add to the assurance of victory next November. I wish that because we believe Republican success to be for the best interests of our common country. The allied hosts of the believers in Republican principles are in a vast majority in this country—when the banners of harmony are unfurled. We have witnessed the come back of our party in various states. We have seen the renunciation of those who believe in Republican doctrines, and victory has followed, and rejoicing has attended. No apology has been asked, no forswearing required. This is not the time for recrimination, it is the day of reconsecration.

Rededicating here and now the Republican party to the progress and glory of the republic, let us bury party prejudices with the administration which our differences put in power. I do not believe there is a really reactionary Republican bearing credentials to this convention. If there is he will depart, after our deliberations, solely and proudly a Republican, with heart aglow with the party spirit of 1916. And the welcome delegate who emphasizes his progressivism is expected to do his part in making our party a reflex of the best thought and best intent of sincere commitment to the uplift and progress of the American people, thereby strengthening party purpose instead of magnifying individual belief, and, too, will find new rejoicing in being a Republican. No party can endure which is not progressive.

Representative Government.

In building the surpassing temple of the republic, which we have been doing to the astonishment, sometimes the envy, sometimes the admiration of the world and oftentimes inspiring others by our example there ever will be modifications and additions to meet the public need and conform to popular ideals. We do not fear to imitate nor fail to originate, but there can be no discord about underlying foundations or essential walls or proved arches or stately columns. Mine is a deep conviction that the founding fathers were divinely inspired, and the wisdom of representative popular government is proved in the surpassing achievement.

It is not alone the miracle of accomplishment which depends our reverence; it is not alone the conviction that we have builded the first seemingly dependable popular government on the earth and exalted all its citizenship, which adds to our faith, but we are the oldest of existing civilized nations, with one passing exception, continued under one form of government, and under that form we have developed the highest standard of living in all the world. Surely we must be right.

Recalling that the mightier forward strides have been taken under a half-century of Republican control, after we led in fixing the indissoluble ties of union, the retrospection, the contemplation and the anticipation combine to all the Republican breast with pride and hope and trust and faith and magnify our obligations in this crucial year of our national life.

Much of the discussion of the hour is hinged upon a world at war. We need not wonder thereat, because the enormity of the conflict and the influences of its horrors have set mankind in upheaval. The traditions of civilization have been broken, and the international laws have been ignored. There is a tidal wave of distress and disaster; there are violent emotions and magnified fears. There are the extremes of incalculable sacrifices and measureless new fortunes, not all American. There are new wonders and new hindrances in commerce, changed balances of trade, new marvels in finance and utterly changed economic conditions. These have attended embarrasments in our foreign relations as difficult as those which the individual citizen experiences whose every neighbor is involved in deadly quarrel. Everything is abnormal except the depleted condition of the federal treasury, which is characteristic of Democratic control and the facility of the administration for writing varied notes without effective notice.

Unarmed America.

Amid these conditions has stood this unarmed giant, typifying the American republic, neutral and sane, to whom the neutral nations have turned for leadership. Our national unselfishness had been proved, our devotion to humanity had been established, our commitment to international justice had long been proclaimed. The world had previously heard the voice of American fearlessness, and all the conditions single us out for leadership among the neutral powers, but the administration at Washington spoke with more rhetoric than resolution, and we came to realize what the warring powers soon came to know—that the official American voice lacked the volume of determined expression that once demanded international heed, and we lacked the strength of confidence in our own defense.

It is too early to estimate the debt and credit account of the European war with civilization. Out of measureless cost and inestimable heroism must come a rebirth of individual spirituality, reawakened national hopes, new liberties and new happiness in patriotism which must prove some compensation.

For National Defense.

Perhaps it is a reminder more than a discovery, but there has come to us a conviction that this great nation, rich in resources and strong in patriotic manhood, has been negligent concerning its own defense. We have dwelt in fancied rather than real security. Pride mingles with regret in this because it suggests the mind of a nation so free from intended offense that there was no cultivated thought of needed defense. Our righteousness of purpose is portrayed in our trust in unarmed safety. But there is a warning in bleeding Europe, and there is call today for prudent, patriotic and ample national defense. There is no mistaking the sentiment. We are not thinking of the hysterical. We are not moved by a preparedness which is parades in conception. We need not believe in a defense propaganda inspired by those who aim to wax fat in the production of arms and munitions because there is none. I deplore the teaching that an anxiety about our national defense is inspired by greed. We rejoice in free speech and untrammeled opinion, but patriotism is ill promoted by the imputation of false motives, whether aimed at those who believe in defense or those who doubt its wisdom. Such a teaching reads the concord of citizenship, which may develop a worse peril from within than from any enemy without.

Though we do not pretend to be exclusive in our devotion, we Republicans believe, sincerely and soberly, in adequate national defense. We have always believed in an ample navy, as invincible in modern might as John Paul Jones builded in our freedom's earliest fight. We have in mind a protected commerce on the waters and a seacoast secure in strong naval defense. We were building a high rank among naval powers when the Democratic party interrupted, and we subscribe to a stronger commitment now because of a new realization of the envy which our wealth and our commerce invite and a new appreciation of our commanding place in the affairs of the world. I shall not say that it is ours to have the greatest navy in the world, but noting the elimination of distance and the passing of our one time isolation, we ought to have a navy that fears none in the world and can say any time and anywhere, "These are American rights and must be respected."

Economy in Security.

It is not for me to specify the provisions for naval defense. Since modern warfare is in large part a conflict of brains, so must naval defense be devised in highest intelligence. Let us strengthen every arm—air, submarine, fleet cruisers and great dreadnaughts. Let him who is anxious about the cost remember that Republican policies afford the ample means without conscious burdens upon the people. Every forward-looking American citizen, whatever his activity, knows that the cost of insurance against accident, theft, fire, flood or thunderbolt, assessed as a fixed charge upon his income, is worth its cost in peace of mind, though loss never attends. Moreover, under any system security is economy itself.

There are manifest differences about our developments for military defense. The president made a trip from the coast to the valley of the Missouri to tell the American people the need of preparedness. It might have been more seemly to tell the story to congress, for that body was in session and empowered to act, and seemingly ever ready to testify obedience. However, congress undertook to provide an army for defense, and the majority wobbled between pacification and preparedness until the Republican minority in the senate put something real in the pending measure. We Republicans made a rational response to the call of the land, but Democratic insufficiency and inefficiency are recorded in the conference amended act and a federal nitrate plant to supply powder to the patriots and pap to the paternalists and federal fertilizer to the farmers in competition with private enterprise is the great constructive offering of a Democratic majority.

Until the civilized world is pledged and repledged to peace, and until civilization commits nations to the nobler practices of the individuals who constitute them, in which I would have America lead, this republic will have need for a basic army and a ready provision for military defense. We proclaim justice and we love peace, and we mean to have them, and we are not too proud to fight for them.

No Curse of Militarism.

Let no one apprehend the curse of militarism in this fair land. We declare unalterably against it. Our free citizenship, walking confidently, absorbed in the triumphs of peace, would tolerate no such blight on American institutions. There is to be no surrender of cherished ideals. With that yearning for peace which has marked our continued development, with that same commitment to justice which has given us front rank in the onward march of civilization, with that rare unselfishness which led us to unseath the sword for humanity's sake and put all territorial aggrandizement aside, with that belief in the square deal, individual, national and international, which is the foundation of American faith, we mean to go on, an exemplar of peace to all the nations, an arbiter of justice to all the world, a promoter of righteousness to all the people of the earth.

The Protective Policy.

Substance is the first requisite of existence, and we have the higher American standard of living because of the Republican protective policy which makes of Americans the best paid workmen in all the world. Out of the abundance of employment and higher compensation, together with the beckoning opportunity which offers every reward, we Americans have attracted the laborers of the earth and set new standards here.

It is not for me to put the stamp of relative importance on pending issues. The intelligent voters will determine that for themselves. But I know what they are thinking, and they believe that the protective policy which made us industrially and commercially eminent is necessary to preserve that eminence. I know they want it restored and maintained. For myself I prefer a protective and productive tariff which prospers America first.

Moreover, I like the abiding consistency of our unchanging position upon this policy. The Republican convention of 1900 which gave to the nation and all history the nomination of Lincoln made this simple and ample utterance:

"That, while providing revenue for the support of the general government by duties upon imports, sound policy requires such an adjustment of these imports as to encourage the development of the industrial interests of the whole country, and we commend that policy of national exchanges which secures to the working men liberal wages, to agriculture remunerative prices, to mechanics and manufacturers an adequate reward for their skill, labor and enterprise and to the nation commercial prosperity and independence."

Temporary Prosperity.

No one disputes a temporary prosperity in our land today. But it is sectional in its factory aspect, abnormal in its feverish rush, fictitious in its essentials and perverting in its tendency. Worse, it is the gold sluiced from the river of blood, poured out by the horrifying sacrifice of millions of our fellow men. God forbid that we should boast a prosperity wrought in such waste of human life. We had rather rejoice in the prosperity of peace. We had rather boast our good fortune won from the world as it stands erect, in a fair contest, where men openly contend for the laurels of industry and the garlands of trade. I do not mean that we must "sharpen our wits in competition with the world," for we tried that and involuntarily turned the blade to cutting our production and severing thousands from American payrolls. There was no cut in the cost of living, but a visible back at the capacity to pay.

The Democratic party is always concerned about the American consumer. Our Republican achievement is the making of a nation of prospering producers. Far better a high cost of living and ability to buy than a lowering of cost attended by destruction of purchasing capacity.

The Cost of Living.

It is worth while to recall the magnified importance given to the high cost of living four years ago, first, to emphasize Democracy's failure to reduce it, though it risked and almost accomplished the ruin of our good fortune in attempting it; second, to declare there is no such thing. What was thought to be the high cost were only the higher demands and the larger capacity to buy, which were the natural reflexes of the higher standard of living reared under Republican protection.

The one notable advance in cost has profited the American farmer, for whose better share in good fortune we have stood unflinching and sincere. His reward is a Republican achievement, and we prefer to cling to the conditions which brought to agriculture its delayed but deserved reward and hold it secure in Republican maintenance of a home market unmatched in all the world. More, we want our basic prosperity to be home created and home sustained and not dependent on conditions abroad.

Democratic Repentance.

The nations abroad and the Democratic party at home are bearing witness to Republican wisdom. German industrial self reliance is the sequence to her adoption of a Republican protective tariff, and England's manifest conversion to this fostering plan will magnify the prophetic wisdom of Republican protectionists. Even the Democratic party is penitent now and makes confession in action if not in words. The proposed destruction of American sugar has been repealed, and stimulated grief about the American breakfast table has been put aside. With that facility for changing position which has been made manifest from Baltimore to Vera Cruz, the party in power proposes to restore the tariff commission which it had hastened to destroy.

This change of attitude is not because of its great and manifest love of commission alone, but because failure in written across every paragraph of Democratic revision, and fear is haunting the White House slumbers. The Wilson administration has sensed the country's anxiety about industrial conditions when the rivalry in munitions and the immunity granted by war are ended. It has made a reflective estimate of the perils of 1914, once called psychological, and means to apply a stolen remedy, with more concern about the effects than the ethics involved. We do not oppose a tariff commission. We favor it. It is a Republican creation.

Square Deal For Business.

No honest business in this country is too big to be good and useful or too little to be protected and encouraged, and both big and little deserve the American shield against destruction by foreign competition and protection from the raiders, political or otherwise, at home. Business and its agencies of transportation are so inseparable from each other and from the common weal that the political party which does not pledge them a square deal, no more no less, does not deserve the confidence of the people. The strength of the business heart shows in every countenance in all the land, and the weakness of that heart holds a nation ill. We must strengthen the heart of American business in government co-operation rather than official opposition.

It is not inspiring to recite Democratic failures. I shall not dwell on that party's insincerity or incapacity. The country's indignity and the record convicts. It proclaimed the sacredness of its pledges, and then profaned them. It professed economy and is staggered by its own extravagance. It has turned adequacy of revenue under indirect and unfair taxes to insufficiency and direct taxation. It has espoused the freedom of the seas and wrought only the freedom of the Panama canal.

Our Widened Relationship.

One century of marvelous development has led us into another century of international sponsorship. This mighty people, idealizing popular government and committed to human progress, can no longer live within and for ourselves alone. Obliterated distance makes it impossible to stand aloof from mankind and escape widened responsibility. If we are to become the agency of a progressive civilization and God's great intent—and to believe otherwise is to deny the proofs of American development—we must assume the responsibilities of influence and example and accept the burdens of enlarged participation. The cloistered life is not possible to the potential man or the potential nation. Moreover, the Monroe doctrine, stronger for a century's maintenance, fixes an obligation of new world sponsorship and old world relationship. Our part must not be dictatorial, it must be trusted leadership in a fraternity of American republics.

Our Strength at Home.

To meet the obligations we must first make sure of maintained mental, moral and physical health at home. It is good to recall that ours is the only major political party ever formed in this country on a great moral issue. Our first proclamation was human liberty, to be glorified by the spiritual and material development of a free people. We opened the way to higher human attainments and emphasized human rights under the guarantees of civil liberty. We need only to go on, imbued with the spirit which has thus far pointed our way. The light of a moral people is the halo of liberty itself. Let us be honest not only in proclamation, but in practice, not alone in campaigns, but in incumbency of office, not only before altars of worship, but in our daily affairs and in every human relationship. If popular government is to be held dependable and command the confidence as well as the loyalty of its citizenship political parties and their platforms and their spokesmen must be honest and sincere.

The American Spirit.

In the travail of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness the American soul was born. Set aglow at Bunker Hill, it was reflected in the faces of the patriots of a fearless republic, where men dedicated themselves to the solemn and momentous task which was traced by an infinite hand. They were not all Americans by birth, but they were dedicated Americans in the baptismal rites of a new republic and a new patriotism. They could not all sign the Declaration of Independence, but they committed all Americans to it for all succeeding time. They could not all join in making the constitution, but they pledged the succeeding millions of Americans to its everlasting defense.

There were stalwart Americans then—Americans from Great Britain with British ideals and their devotion to orderly government. There were Americans from the land of Napoleon and Lafayette to give of the enthusiasm and heroism of France in establishing new freedom. There were Americans from Germany to fight the battles of the republic and blend their sturdiness and thoroughness in the progress of a new people, not a new race. There were Americans from the green fields of Ireland, with a passion for liberty; Americans from southern Europe to battle for opportunity. There were Americans who came from oppression and stood erect in the freedom of the republic. They all made common cause. There was lack of homogeneity of race, but there was kinship of soul, and that soul was American. The gates to our ports have swung inward ever since. There has been a welcome to the foreign born whom we asked to drink freely of the waters of our political life and find their places in the sun of American opportunity. They are an inseparable and important and valued part of American citizenship, and the few zealots of any origin who violate our neutrality do not and can not impugn the loyalty or the American patriotism of that great body which adds to the swelling chorus of

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,

It is not surprising that in their hearts there is sympathy or partiality for the land of their nativity when it is involved in a life and death struggle like that which saturates Europe with the blood of their kinsmen. Search your hearts deeply, my countrymen. You must be human to be an American, but he must have human sympathies and human loves, and I should pity the foreign born and the sons of foreign born whose very souls are not wrung by the cataclysmal sorrow of the old world. But sorrow is the test of soul and the very altar of reconsecration. This is the momentous hour for the blazing soul of American allegiance. The spirit of the fathers is calling, and the safety of unborn Americans is demanding and the security of the republic is requiring that now and here and everywhere, under the stars and stripes, we proclaim a plain, simple, glad and unalterable Americanism. It must be the offering of loyalty and devotion and love and trust, and life, if need be, to these United States, now and everlastingly.

Submersion of Local Views.

The Americanism which indexes these United States must be more than the consecration of the individual. In the great fulfillment we must have a citizenship less concerned about what the government can do for it and more anxious about what it can for the nation. There must be the submersion of local and sectional views and the standards of nationality reared in their stead. Holding to the ideals of just American rights, the government must protect those rights at home, on our borders, on the seas, in every land and under every sky.

Our Foreign Relations.

Seeking to practice the very Americanism I preach as Republican gospel, I am reluctant to speak of a division of American sentiment relating to our foreign affairs. One must be an American first and a partisan afterward, though we believe Republicanism is the culture of highest Americanism. But it must be said, for the truth's sake and clearer understanding, we have hungered in vain for that unflinching Americanism at Washington which is needed to exalt the American soul. There is no geographic modification of American rights. They are the same in Mexico that they are on the high seas; they are the same in Europe that they are in Asia and are sacred everywhere, and the American spirit demands their fullest protection. Whatever the ultimate solution may be, history will write Mexico as the title to the humiliating recital of the greatest fiasco in our foreign relations. Uncertainty, instability, Mexican contempt and waning self respect will be recorded in every chapter, and the pitiable story of sacrificed American lives and the destruction of lawfully lived American property will emphasize the mistaken policy of watchful waiting and wabbling warfare.

Our civilization has evolved the rules of right conduct and written them into forms of government by law. They were conceived in justice and developed in righteousness. They have become instinctive in our American life and are cherished as a part of our people's inheritance. Our people do not understand any suspension; they are impelled to march on, confident and unafraid. When the spirit of American accomplishment, or the mercies of American administration, or the inclinations of American teaching, or the adventures of American development take our people abroad under the compacts of civilization they have a right to believe that every guaranty of American citizenship goes with them. When it does not we have forfeited the American inheritance.

Our Course With Europe.

No political party can draw a variable chart for our ship of state amid Europe's warring ambitions, lust for power or battles for self preservation. Justice points the way through the safe channel of neutrality. There are dangers, seeming or real, looming on every side, but we should feel secure along the course marked by international law and our own conscientious convictions of American rights. "Straight ahead" shall be the command, and when peace comes the sober judgment of the world will exalt us ever higher and higher as a people strong in heart and noble in the espousal of justice and justice's humanity. In that worldwide respect and confidence which needs only to be preserved we shall have a lofty place in the great reconstruction, and we reasonably may hope to see this mighty republic again ministering to the reestablishment of peace and all its precious blessings.

My countrymen, Americanism begins at home and radiates abroad. The republican conception gives the first thought of a free people and a fearless people and bespeaks conditions at home for the highest human attainment. We believe in American markets for American products, American wages for American workmen, American opportunity for American genius and industry and American defense for American soul. American citizenship is the reflex of American conditions, and we believe our policies make for a fortunate people for whom moral, material and educational advancement is the open way. The glory of our progress confirms. The answered aspirations of a new world civilization acclaim. We have taken the ideal form of popular government and applied the policies which had led a continent to the stars of liberty and glorified the republic. We have justified pride and fortified hope. We need only to preserve and defend and go unflinching on. Power is the guarantor of peace and conscience the buckler of everlasting right. Verily, it is good to be an American. And we may rejoice to be Republicans.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN DIES OF APOPLEXY

Itinerant Awning Maker Died Suddenly on Tuesday at Boarding House on Catherine Street—Coroner Kelly Seeking Relatives.

An itinerant awning maker who has been coming to Kingston for the past two or three years, was seized with a stroke of apoplexy on Tuesday morning at his boarding house, No. 238 Catherine street, and died that afternoon. Coroner Kelly has taken charge of the remains and is seeking relatives. Where he boarded he was known only by the name of "Joe." On his arm was found tattooed the initials "H. M." Among his belongings were found no clue to his identity. At the boarding house it was said that he was seized with a stroke shortly after breakfast and lay down on a couch in one of the rooms and then later rose and walked to his room and got in bed, where he died. He was thought to have come here from Astoria, Long Island, and had been in the city about two weeks.

STABBER HELD TO AWAIT TRIAL

Samuel R. Christian who Stabbed Herbert Harbeck in Saloon Brawl Held for Two Days When it is Expected Harbeck will be Able to Appear in Court.

This morning Samuel R. Christian, the Italian who stabbed Herbert Harbeck with a pen knife in a saloon on Broadway, was arraigned before Recorder Lank, who adjourned the case for two days when it was expected that Harbeck would have recovered sufficiently from his wounds to appear in court. In default of $1,000 bail Christian was remanded to jail.

As told in the Freeman on Tuesday the affair started in a saloon run by an Italian, and known as the Big Chief's on Broadway near Field Court. Christian claimed that Harbeck threw a beer glass at him and then punched him. As Harbeck was a bigger man physically than Christian the latter drew a pen knife and stabbed Harbeck. While the wounds bled profusely, it was found on examination at the Kingston City Hospital that they were not as serious as expected.

WHAT WILL THE CONVENTIONS DO?

That the sentiment in favor of state and national prohibition has greatly increased of late years, all well-informed people know.

Some forty years ago, believing that there was but one way to bring it about, a comparatively small number of the voters of this county formed the Prohibition party. But most people have remained with the dominant parties, believing that they would sooner or later declare for the destruction of the drink traffic.

Hitherto the leading parties have not espoused the cause, but greater pressure is being brought to bear upon them this year than ever before, and some think that a Prohibition plank will be placed in the platforms. W. J. Bryan, in an address recently delivered before the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Saratoga, expressed his belief that the time was near at hand. Others, like former Governor Hanley of Indiana, think that it is not probable, nor even possible. He believes this so thoroughly that a few weeks since, in an editorial in his own paper, he withdrew from the party with which he had all his life been identified.

The general conference above mentioned in its ringing utterances on National Prohibition incorporated this as a part of its report: "Resolved, that we earnestly urge all political parties in the national conventions to declare in favor of congress submitting to the legislatures of the states for their ratification an amendment to the federal constitution absolutely prohibiting the beverage traffic in all intoxicating liquors throughout the United States and its possessions, and that pending the submission of such amendment congress shall enact statutory prohibition to the full extent of its present constitutional powers for the nation, including the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, the canal zone, and all the island reservations, ships, buildings and premises under federal police jurisdiction," and the secretary of the conference was directed to immediately have these resolutions neatly printed and placed before the several national political conventions to meet during the year.

But other pressure has been brought to bear on these conventions. For some time leading temperance men in various states have been getting signatures to this pledge of similar ones. I will give my influence and vote only to such candidates and party as stand committed by state and national platform declaration to the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

The plan has been to secure the signatures of five million voters to this pledge. Something like one million have been secured.

Lately the movement has been reinforced by the formation of a "Committee of Sixty," who are working along this same line. This committee is composed of leading men throughout the nation. The honorary president is Chancellor David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford Jr. University. The president is Daniel A. Poling, associate president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor while men like Luther Burbank, the California plant wizard, Dr. Samuel Dickey, of Albion College, Hon. Richmond P. Hobson, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Ernest Charnick, of the Anti-Saloon League, Hon. Arthur Capper, governor of Kansas, Hon. Eugene Foss, former governor of Massachusetts, are prominent members.

What the end will be, none can tell.

A meeting will be held in the Clinton Avenue Church Friday evening, June 2, at 7:30 at which time this matter will be discussed in addresses by those who have made a study of this movement and all men and women, too, who are interested in state and national prohibition are urged to be present. Some temperance songs are expected to be a feature of the meeting.

Students Visit Creamery.

A great many people are availing themselves of the invitation of the creamery on Downs street to visit the plant and witness the clarifying and pasteurizing of the milk. Mrs. Sam Bernstein, a few days ago, took a party of ladies and the domestic science class of the high school there, spending several hours in a most enjoyable manner. They were greatly interested in everything they saw. The manufacture of ice cream, the separation of cream from the skim milk, the churning of 200 pounds of butter at one time, the ripening of cream cheese, and the clarifying and pasteurizing of the milk, and the manner of cooling it from 145 degrees to 36 degrees in five seconds. The filling of the bottles and capping automatically, together with the sterilizing of the cans, bottles and cases, were particularly interesting, from a sanitary standpoint. Much surprise was manifested when they saw the clarifier cleaned after the raw milk had passed through it. The mess that came out of it was almost unbelievable. Delicious ice cream that they saw manufactured was served with cake during their visit. Those who accompanied Mrs. Bernstein were Mrs. W. Scott Gillespie, Mrs. Ebel, Mrs. Leon G. McIntyre, Mrs. Garrison, Mrs. H. S. Jennings, Mrs. Swart, Mrs. T. D. Lewis, Mrs. Haulenbeck, Mr. Hendricks and Miss Helen Bernstein. Miss Davis, instructor of the domestic science class, accompanied the students, of whom there were about thirty.

Election of officers took place at which the same officers were re-elected. President, Mrs. Sam Bernstein; vice-president, Miss Anna Cassler; secretary, Miss Celia Friedman and treasurer, Miss Edna Silverstein.

Considerable business was disposed of including the collection of tickets and money for the recent dance held at St. Mary's Hall. A fine amount was netted for which the society thanks all those who in any way helped to make it a success.

The private dance followed the meeting, which was very largely attended. Steve Miller's orchestra furnished the music which was greatly enjoyed by all. All departed in time for the last car, thanking Mrs. Bernstein heartily for the lovely time afforded.

N. directress of nurses of the Benedictine Sanatorium, were the guests of honor at an elaborate luncheon given at the Stuyvesant Hotel on Tuesday, by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the sanatorium. Covers were laid for twenty-five, and the long table was artistically decorated with a mound of white peonies as the centerpiece, with flat decorations of smilax and asparagus fern and enchantress carnations, which were the luncheon favors. The floral plate cards were handsome and added materially to the attractive appearance of the table. The members of the auxiliary present were Dr. Mary Gazeau, president; Mrs. James Dwyer, first vice president; Mrs. William Rafferty, second vice president; Mrs. A. D. Murphy, third vice president; Mrs. Mark O'Meara, secretary; Mrs. Ann Drow J. Cook, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John Kearney, Mrs. Peter Barmann, Jr., Mrs. James McCarthy, Mrs. John G. Mr. Herschmann Sang at Bethlehem.

Among the artists who acted as soloists at the eleventh Bach Festival when the Bach B. Minor Mass was given at Bethlehem, Penn., the last week in May, Arthur Herschmann, baritone, who was to have been the baritone soloist in festival oratorio concert which the Symphony Society prepared to give here this June, received the following flattering press notices from the Philadelphia and Bethlehem newspapers:

"His intonation was unusually accurate."—Public Ledger.

"Perfectly at home at all times."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Naturally rich and powerful voice."—Philadelphia Press.

"Voice of lyric quality, used with energy and earnestness."—Bethlehem Times.

Mr. Herschmann, from the time that he was engaged to sing in Kingston until the moment when it was found to be impossible to give, the festival this year, has been indefatigable in helping the local organization to make a financial as well as an artistic success. Through him the soprano and tenor were engaged, and again through his interest and generosity, all of these soloists, have with most considerate appreciation of the situation released the Kingston Symphony Society from its obligation to them this year. But the Symphony Society intends that the Kingston music loving public shall have the opportunity to hear these artists next season, and has so arranged.

Poughkeepsie and Wilbur schools to attend, and that without dismissing school before the usual hour. Parents and teachers should keep this concert in mind for the children, the school tickets being but ten cents, as such a concert offers a musical education of the highest value. Tomorrow, Thursday morning, subscribers may exchange their tickets at the same place, and single tickets will be for sale, beginning on Friday.

"Favorite Son" Old Expression.
The expression "favorite son" in politics of this country is heavy age. As far back as 1789 Washington was called the "favorite son of liberty" by a New York city journal. In 1825 John Randolph, the wit orator of Virginia, was referred to

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Oh, sing a song of six hits
Coffers full of dough,
Baseball magnates full of glee,
Watch the turnstiles go,
Round and round the wheels do spin,
Every afternoon,
Jeans of moguls bulging so
They must bust quite soon.
Baseball Comes Back.

The above jingle, when properly translated, will convey the fact that baseball has "come back." The crowds so far this season have been uniformly large. In some towns, where the teams are wallowing around in the cellar goo, the attendance has not been sufficient to force out a "restore order" squad of police. But in the municipalities where the home gang is on or near the top, the reward has come in husky gate receipts.

The Indians so far this year draw almost as many fans in the first home games as they did in all the 77 at-homes a year ago. The Senators are "pulling" great not only in their own pasture but also abroad. The Yankees keeps crowds, with only about 45 of the games played, almost equal the grand total for the entire 1915 season. The amazing spirit of the Giants turned out crowds everywhere and especially at home.

The Tiger, White Sox and Red Sox haven't been doing as well as was expected, but they are drawing a sizeable number of patrons. The Braves and Phillies are attracting well, while the Dodgers this season have been playing to crowds far beyond any in the modern history of the Brooklyn outfit.

Puzzle—Whom Does Al Manage?
Al Lippe sends this:
"In the entire world today there is not a single middleweight fighter exhibiting the class, speed, punch and all around endurance of Jeff Smith. He has met and defeated not alone the best men in his class in this country, but has gone to every part of the world in search of men shifty enough to give him a battle."

"Jeff has one burning ambition, and that is to meet Dillon, whom he is confident of whipping. He regards Al McCoy as an alleged champion, and not even worthy of consideration in a serious manner."

$1,000 Golf Bag.

L. B. Fenner, of Burwell, Neb., owns the costliest golf bag in the world.

He went hunting in Florida last winter and fatally plunked an alligator. He shipped the hide north with instructions to have it converted into a caddy park. A few days later he got a letter from the sporting goods house telling him the hide was that of a small alligator, a rare species, and that it was worth close to $1,000. "What shall we do?" asked the golf bag makers.

"Make me the bag as requested," wrote Buck Fenner. And they did.

Yankees Uncover Star.

The Yankees apparently have found a star in the person of Al. The youngster was the third stringer when the season began. Then Nunnemaker was rendered hors de combat and a while later Alexander was forced from the field of battle by an injury.

That gave Walters a chance—and he has made good with a whoop. The kid is the peppery youngster seen in a New York uniform in years. He has shown fine backstopping ability, has a great whip, can hit with the best catchers in the game and has a remarkable knack of sledding his pitchers.

It's a treat to watch Walters in action. He is on the alert all the time and he has a brain so nimble that he frequently has outguessed the enemy and beaten them to it when they have attempted a bit of baseball trickery.

Shaw Took Chance—And Wins.
Sometimes it pays to take a chance. Captain Daird Shaw of Cleveland took a $120 chance on Prince Loree, a crippled trotter, last winter and it seems now that he will reap a rich reward.

Prince Loree, son of Ellorer, was bred by Walter Cox, of Dover, N. H. A year or so ago he was injured—seemingly of permanent nature. Cox sold the horse at auction last fall for $50. The pastime stables, of Cleveland, which bought him, nursed Prince Loree along for a while, but secured no results. Soon they turned him over to Al Pennock, also of Cleveland, for $50.

Shaw happened to see the limping racer one day, figured that he could cure him of his ailment, and put in a bid for him. Pennock asked something like $200 at first but Shaw David-Barummed him to $120—and got the horse.

Prince Loree was treated for a month or so in the Shaw stables under the direction of his owner. He was carefully nursed and doctored. The injury finally disappeared and then Shaw gave the once-time cripple a mild workout over a quarter mile stretch. Prince Loree covered the distance in 34½, which is remarkably fast time for so early in the year.

Horsemen who have seen the Loree horse in his untamed workouts since feel confident he will do 2:10 or better during the summer. A 2:10 trotter for $120 is a bargain, Oscar—a rare bargain indeed.

That Town Line Bridge.

County Attorney John W. Eckert was at Monticello today, where a hearing was had before the Hon. William E. Thorne of Catskill, as referee, in the suit brought by the town of Manakating, Sullivan county, against the town of Shawangunk, Ulster county, to compel the latter to bear one-half the expense of a new town line bridge. The town of Shawangunk claims that the bridge is entirely within Sullivan county, inasmuch as the course of the stream over which the bridge is constructed was changed a number of years ago. Hon. George H. Smith is counsel for the town of Manakating.

Hot Liners.
(By Frank G. Menke.)
The "hoodoo" of the Polo Grounds still sticks to the Giants. The Pirates did the trick yesterday.

It was the fifth defeat out of eight games the Giants have suffered since their winning streak of 17 straight.

Meanwhile the Dodgers are climbing higher. They made telling use of their bats against the Reds.

It was another great day for the western teams. The Reds were the only ones to fall by the wayside.

The Tigers are getting back in the hunt. The world champions could not ward off the attack.

Sallee's southpaw slants were too much for the Braves.

Spur won the Withers Stakes at Belmont. He didn't need urging.

The Phillies had a taste of the slugging abilities of the Cubs. It was a bitter pill.

Short on Birthdays.
Arthur was born on February 23, so his birthday comes but once in four years. At his first day in school, having been asked his name, address, etc., he was further questioned as to his birthday. "My birthday was the last day in February, two years ago," was his surprising reply.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS
INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

KILLDEER
(Oxyechus vociferus)

Length, ten inches. Distinguished by its piercing and oft-repeated cry—killdeer.

Range: Breeds throughout the United States and most of Canada; winters from central United States to South America.

Habits and economic status: The Killdeer is one of the best known of the shorebird family. It often visits the farmyard and commonly nests in pastures or cornfields. It is rather suspicious, however, and on being approached takes flight with loud cries. It is noisy and restless, but fortunately most of its activities result in benefit to man. The food is of the same general nature as that of the upland plover, but is more varied. The Killdeer feeds upon beetles, grasshoppers, caterpillars, ants, bugs, caddis flies, dragonflies, centipedes, spiders, ticks, oyster worms, earthworms, snails, crabs and other crustaceans. Among the beetles consumed are such pests as the alfalfa weevil, cotton-boll weevil, clover-root weevil, clover-leaf weevil, pine weevil, billbugs, white grubs, wireworms, and leaf beetles. The bird also devours cotton worms, cotton cutworms, horseflies, mosquitos, cattle ticks, and crawfish. One stomach contained hundreds of larvae of the saltmarsh mosquito, one of the most troublesome species. The Killdeer preys extensively upon insects that are annoying to man and injurious to his stock and crops, and this should be enough to remove it from the list of game birds and insure its protection.

intendent of schools. The school districts farthest away were well represented.

This preliminary contest was held to select the pupils to represent the town at a county contest to be held at the Ellenville fair in August, where the champion speller in Ulster county will be selected to represent the county at the state fair at Syracuse next September. Superintendent John Union Gillette, under whose direction the work is being done in the second supervisory district, gave a written examination of one hundred words selected from a list of three thousand two hundred words. The papers were rated and Alice Freer, District No. 7, Rock School, Rifton, won at 99 per cent, and was declared one of the representatives to the county contest.

A spelling-bee was held to determine the second representative, each town being entitled to two representatives. Superintendent Gillette lined up the contestants and pronounced the words thick and fast for a long time without effect. Finally the line began to weaken and resulted in a tie, the last two contestants, Olive Ferguson, District No. 6, Buntoco, Eugenia Freer, District No. 7, Rock School, taking their seat on the same word. The superintendent gave additional words to break the tie, which resulted in Eugenia Freer winning and she was declared the second representative from the town of Esopus to the county contest. The successful contestants are pupils of Anna Devine of Rifton, District No. 7, and a graduate of the New Paltz Normal School, and whose pupils' exhibits of school work last year at Ulster Park attracted the attention of Commissioner Dr. Thomas E. Flanagan and it was placed on exhibit in the educational building, Albany.

The following are the names of the young ladies and gentlemen who deserve great credit for representing their schools and whose work in each case was very commendable, and also the teachers who backed up the work:

District No. 1—Louise Polhemus.

Anna Schnell. Ruth Cookingham, teacher.
District No. 4—Ethel Contant, Raymond Contant. Milla Bush, teacher.
District No. 5—Helen Gillette, Harriet Carmen. Belle R. Parker, teacher.
District No. 6—Olive Ferguson, Frede E. Frers, teacher.
District No. 7—Alice Freer, Eugenia Freer. Anna Devine, teacher.
District No. 8—Stuart D. Nott, Tracy Craig. George Shiele, teacher.
District No. 13—Mildred Crook, Jacquelyn Monroe. Principal Mead Davis, teacher.
District No. 14—Cristie Becker, Florence Hains, Anna Hains. Principal C. E. C. Longyear, teacher.

Growing.
People say that growing "relieves their nerves." On the contrary, it doubles the strain by fixing the grower's attention on annoyances, and increasing their power to do mischief.
